Republican Managers Announce That There Is a Tie Vote and It Will Require an Official Count To Settle It-Latest

from Other States.

Louisville, Ky., November 6.-As the official returns come in tonight the statement is confirmed that the electoral vote of the state is going to stand 12 to 1.

In some counties the head of the electora ticket leads the other twelve by more than 100 votes. It will take the official count to satisfy both sides.

The last newspaper figures place McKinley's plurality in the state at 633.. The official count by countles is about complete outside of this, Jefferson county, which will not be imished for four or five days, owing to the large vote. The state returning board will meet three weeks from Tuesday to pass on the count by counties. Kash and Smith, the first electors on the republican and democratic tickets, respectively, are running ahead of the other electors on the official count, and no matter which way the state goes, the electoral vote is going to be divided, that is if the republicans carry the state, they will get twelve electors and the democrats one, and vice yersa if the democrats win.

This results from the fact that a large number of voters placed the cross opposite the name of the first elector instead of under the party device

The canvassing board has ruled in these cases that the vote should count only for one elector notwithstanding the evident in-" of the voter. This raises an interesting question in regard to the votes.

Roberts Says "Republican." Chairman Roberts, of the republican state

"We have received official returns from all except twenty-seven countles. We have trustworthy returns from the missing ones, however, and the 119 counties of the state show 435 phurality for McKinley. We are perfectly satisfied that we have carried the state. I am waiting on further official returns, and expect to send Major McKinley telegram before midnight. I concede the lemocrats one elector, owing to the failure of voters to stamp their ballots correctly. Major H. P. Johnson, chairman of the democratic state central committee, said tonight that from information in his possession he believed the state had given Bryan 1,000 plurality. Urey Woodson, member of the democratic national committee for Kentucky made the following statement:

Democrats Are Confident.

"I am more confident tonight than I have been at any time since the election that the democratic electoral ticket was elected in Kentucky, but I have an abundance of evidence that the republicans in the mountain counties, where democrats are exceedingly scarce, have perpetrated the grossest frauds both before and since the polls closed on Tuesday. This information has come to me from the most reputable men at Middlesboro, Pineville, Barbourville, London, Somerset and other towns in eastern Kentucky.

"The republican committee and the press the past three days of a plurality of from 600 to 1,000. During this time they have been forced to acknowledge the errors which reduced their claims nearly 3,000 votes. Every time they have been forced to acknowledge the truth about one of these central and western counties, which with good telegraphic and telephone facilities, were speedily covered by the news agencies, they have been able to draw on one of these remote mountain counties for a majority far surpassing anything ever known in their history and still they claim the state by 600.

"I am entirely confident of the election of the Bryan electors by a small but safe plurality, which will be shown on the final count. Our people are collecting the evince of these frauds." Woodson declined to give out any Official returns will not be obtainable for some weeks, as the secretary of state will require all sheriffs to send copies of poll lists and tally sheets and this required four weeks two years ago. He will not open the returns until all are in.

Seventy-seven counties give Bryan 139,341, McKinley 124,176; Bryan's plurality 15,165. The other nineteen counties will reduce this to about 13,500.

Chairman Coleman, of the silver democratic state committee, tonight issued the following address to the democrats of Tennesses.

"That great arbiter of American conten-tions, the ballot, has defeated for the time the cause so dear to Tennessee democracy, but amid the wreck of our hopes on national issues were the content of the national issues we yet have much to con-gratulate ourselves in the election of Robert L. Taylor as our governor, eight members to our national congress and a largely increased membership in both branches of our state legislature, despite the combined opposition of corporate pow-er, unnatural alliances and an unlimited

CARMACK CLAIMS A VICTORY Says Patterson Is Defeated Despite His Corrupt Combination.

To The Constitution-I have carried this district by 500 majority against overwhelm-ing odds. The newspapers of Memphis, un-limited boodle, a combination of goldbugs, republicans and federal officials were arrayed against me, but we won over all. The defeat of Bryan is a terrible blow, but one lost battle does not end the war. The money power is working its own destruction and Belshazzar will yet read his doon upon the wall. The Constitution is loved and honored by all the democrats of this section as a glorious champion of a glorious cause.

Memphis, Tenn., November 5, 1896.

Memphis, Tenn., November 6.—Official re-urns show that E. W. Carmack, silver gold democrat, for congress from this dis-trict, by 454 majority. Colonel Patterson has finally declared his purpose to contest before congress.

TIE VOTE IN SOUTH DAKOTA. McKinley and Bryan Get Equal Bel-

'clock tonight South Dakota's vote on presidential electors is tied and an official count will be required to determine the result.

The republican managers have closed their office with the above declaration. Any claim of the populists that this state is for Bryan is not justified by the returns. Corrections and changes in three precincts not yet heard from may give the electors to either Bryan or McKinley.

Republican congressmen and governor ran ahead of the electoral ticket by several hunderd votes so far as heard from, and they may have safe majoritles.

NO CHANGE IN CALIFORNIA. McKinley Is Sure To Have a Small Majority.

San Francisco, November 6.-Returns collected up to midnight give the following result: Twenty-one hundred and fifty-one recincts out of 2,377 give McKinley 144,952; Bryan 138,756. There are 125 precints to hear from, which in 1892 gave Harrison 1.792, and Cleveland 2,908,

Based upon the latest returns the state legislature will contain 46 republican assemblymen, 10 republican senators and 1 republican hold-over senators, a total on joint ballot of 74. Democratic assemblymen, 9; democratic senators, 6; democratic hold-over sens tors, 2. a total of 17 on joint ballot. Fusion senators, 4; fusion assemblymen, 24, a total of 28 on joint ballot. Populist assemblyman, 1—a republican majority over all

Complete returns may change these figures slightly, but it is improbable the publican majority will be reduced.

"No truer or more honorable man than Watson could have been selected as the leader of the ticket. His serious illness in the thick of the fight was a great trial to him, and a great loss to the party. He was defeated by wards packed with illegal negro voters in the various cities, and work by corrupt election machinery. These reports did not seem to have much foundation, however. The Harvard players are not in the best of form and the make up of the team has not been fully decided upon. Pennsylvania is preparing for one of the hardest struggles of the season. The Indians, having been defeated by those of the high four after tremendous struggles, will strain every muscle to win. They will have the same team in the field that they have placed throughout the season. Pennsylvania men are not in any way sure of victory. They have been putting in hard and steady practice throughout the week. The Carlisle Indians are the most popular players of the season.

Of course Yale is a prime favorite over Brown, though it is an even bet that the latter team scores. Yale will play several substitutes in tomorrow's game in order that the older players may be at Cambridge watching the struggle between her old-time rivals. Yale really expects to meet defeat this year at the hands of Princeton, but will nevertheless put up a hard struggle and will make use of information which may be obtained by watching the Tigers work tomorrow.

clear above all other circumstances environing the senatorial situation. The firm and outspoken stand taken by nearly five-sixths of the members of the legislature against another election and the overwhelming manifestations of similar sentiment throughout the state has, it appears beyond all question, erected an iron wall in the way of those who would thrust another election upon the people. The development of sentiment seems to have passed far beyond the point where there could be any question of the temper and intention of the legislature. Through such canvasses as made by Mr. Burwell, of Hancock, and Ellis, of Stewart, and through the positive stand taken by many of the members, the feeling or legislators has been more than ordinari impressed upon the public

Beyond all cavil or doubt the legislators have taken their position-so the situation stands at this time. The prevention of another election appears to be the fixed purpose of the legislature. Only the disposition of the various candidates remains to be settled. Who will be the winner of the prize is volved in uncertainty, and it will possibly not be known until after the caucus who is in the lead. This matter of selecting from the field a man to succeed General Gordon is all that remains for the legislators. General Evans Is Out of It. General Evans clarified and simplified the situation very much by a statement pubished over his own signature yesterday. General Evans came out in strong terms, reiterating his expressions in opposition to another election. His words given in such manner and at such a time are everywhere regarded as practically removing him as a possible factor in the gubernatorial race. He has been strong element in the senatorial race, as he was by many considered the certain successor of Governor Atkinson in the event of the latter's promotion to the enate. This impression has been carefully purtured and fostered by Governor Atkinson's friends and it has even been made to appear in the past week that General Evans had withdrawn opposition to another elec-So long as General Evans remained as possible factor in the possible gubernatorial race he was a source of great strength to Governor Atkinson's candidacy. His strong friends, anxious to do him honor, were anxious to make vacant for him the high place of governor.

But yesterday's statement from General Evans would seem to eliminate him entirely from the prospective fight. He is not in the attitude of a provisional candidate any longer. General Evans's statement furnished to the press yesterday is as follows: It has become absolutely my duty to myself to make a statement without de lay over my own signature. I cannot submit to be held responsible for mistakes made by the press whatever may be the cause of these mistakes. I say positively that I have not used my influence either for or against any candidate for the office of United States senator. It has not been my duty to do so. I was many days ago among the first to give an opinion that another gubernatorial election would be unwise That opinion was formed without any regard to the senatorial race at all and without personal antagonism to any party. I have not changed that opinion, I opposed another election in large part business reasons. Business men want to get down to business. I gave the opinion in the face of the fact that there appeared to be a general desire to elevate me to the office of governor in case of a vacancy. I did not oppose it because of the fear that the democratic party would suffer defeat, which I am not willing to admit. The party may defeat itself, but if tru

Captain of the Tiber Will Be Charged with Manslaughter-Government Cares for the Survivors.

St. John, N. F., November 6 .- The steam er Tiber, Captain Delisle, bound for Sidney, left here at 7 o'clock tonight. Fifteen minutes later, when just beyond the entrance to the harbor, she collided with the schooner Maggie, bound from Benavist bay for St. John with a cargo of fish and lum-

The schooner carried a crew of nine and twenty-four passengers, five of whom were women. The schooner had her lights displayed and there was no justification on the steamer's part for the collision because the night was clear and the schooner quite near the shore in a part of the entrance where steamers rarely go.

The schooner was struck amidships, cut in two pieces and sank instantly. All aboard were on deck. They were thrown into the water and those saved were only rescued by the help of the floating deck

Several were caught under the sails and dragged down with the sinking vessel. Others were unable to keep affoat until the rescue boats arrived and dropped off the planks. Two men climbed up the steamer's side and seven were saved by her boats. One woman was also saved, making ten souls rescued. The other thirteen, nine men and four women, drowned. Captain Blundon's wife, who was bringing her consumptive sixteen-year-old boy to the hospital at St. John, was drowned, though her husband had her on a plank. The boy was saved. The captain's brother and nephew were also lost.

Seven widows and thirty-three orphans is the result of this catastrophe. The pecuniary losses of the survivors are less closely related. The accident happened within half a mile of the town. The steamer lay to while she sent a boat ashore to land the survivors and then continued

CLEMENT A. EVANS. How It Is Regarded.

This statement from General Evans was the topic of general comment in the hotel corridors yesterday afternoon. It was the and always." practical declaration from General Evans that he was not considering the possibility of being a candidate for governor to succeed Governor Atkinson.

General Evans's position has been the source of much talk for weeks past. Many thought he would be in the gubernatorial race if there should be one, and many others believed he would be in the senstorial race. His statement yesterday puts the matter at rest.

Hope and Confidence Strong.

Hope and confidence still brighten the camps of the five senatorial candidates. There has been no let up in the race. The five original entries are still fighting for front place with the same fierce energy as at first and with not a single nerve

The same busy scenes about the lobples and the candidates' headquarters were re-enacted yesterday. The same activity among the candidates and their lieutenants was uoticeable.

The finish of the race is on and all the candidates are fighting hard. There remains but two more working days in which the fight is to be settled unless the politicians count Sunday a working day. Today will be an exceptionally busy day. About half of the legislators will go home tonight to spend Sunday and will not return until Monday.

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock they vote in caucus and the necessity of quick. prompt work has impressed itself on each of the candidates and his friends.

The interest of the members of the house and senate in the race grows much more serious as the time for voting draws near. The mail of the legislators has been remarkably heavy this week and it is said by the members that they have been flooded with communications from constituents

Woman's Writes

Believe in Woman's Writes Of course we do. Who could help it when women write such convincing words as these: "For seven years I suffered with scrofula. I had a good physician. Every means of cure was tried in vain. At last I was told to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which entirely cured me after using seven bottles.' -MRS. JOHN A. GENTLE, Fort Fairfield, Me., Jan. 26, 1896.

from home against the election. Re tative Kiser, of Campbell, received through his mail a petition bearing 350 names. It protested in strongest terms against another election. This voluntary petition from citizens speaks volumes to the legislators and gives evidence of a deep sentiment that s prevalent throughout the state. One legslator states that he received a letter from his home stating that the feeling there against an election was so strong that unless they were assured that the vote of the member in question would be cast against another election a petition of 3,000 citizens would be presented to him.

The mail of all the members has crowded with letters of protest.

That Canvass of the House. The canvass of the house made by Repre sentatives Burwell and Ellis and its startling result has helped to open the eyes of the members. But this showing was not necessary to make clear to all the sentiment of the house. It was too apparent on all sides.

There is not a member of the house or senate who is not aware of the great preponderance of feeking against another election. It stands out on all sides. It stands out in every group of legislators. Take any group you will and question them. Seventeen out of every twenty will speak out against another election. This proportion holds good throughout the entire legislature. This fact has impressed itself on all the

So, unless every sign falls, the vexed question of another election is already set-

Mr. Burwell reiterated vesterday the result of his canvass of the house. He talked with 116 members. Ninety-six of that number were strongly opposed to another elec tion. Twenty of the number are for Governor Atkinson

Was it "For" or "Against?"

Mr. Burwell laughed at the statement that the gentlemen whom he saw did not know they were being interviewed. "I asked each man the direct question and each man answered directly. I at once marked him down in my book," said Representative Burwell.

It was stated that the result of Mr. Ellis's canvass was not correctly stated in The Journal yesterday afternoon. The whole sense of the statement, it is said, was changed by the use of the word "against" in place of the word "for." Mr. Ellis is quoted as saying that he saw 73 members, out of which number twelve were outspoken against Governor Atkinson. Friends of Mr. Ellis stated yesterday afternoon that what Mr. Ellis said was that twelve out of the number he saw were for the governor.

Petitioned Mr. Swift.

Representative T. M. Swift, of Elbert county, received a petition vesterday from his county saving that nine-tenths of the people of Elbert county do not want another gubernatorial election.

"If we could elect Atkinson without an election for governor the choice of Elbert county would be the governor." Mr. Swift said. "As it is now the people of Elbert, to a great extent, favor General Evans for United States senator. Elbert county is the banner county for democracy in the state and wishes the Hon. John P. Shannon, of Elberton, for supreme court judge. Elbert county is for democracy first, last stand in the present legislature. He is chairman of the banks committee named yesterday and is a member of several of the most important committees. Mr. Swift praised the speech of Colonel Robertson last night, saying it was a fine and very weighty speech.

THE SENTIMENT IN GEORGIA.

The newspapers are practically unanimous in their opposition to the election of Governor Atkinson to the senate. Many of those which have been strong supporters of the governor throughout his political career are the strongest in their opposition to another election, and consequently are opposed to the governor's election to the

The different phases of the contest ar being widely discussed. The exposure of the efforts to use General Evans to further the governor's election has offended th friends of the general, who are raising a storm of protest. The Macon News reflects the general sentiment on this line when i

"Will General Evans allow himself to be made a party to trickery? It is hardly necessary for us to state that he will no knowingly enter into a combine with political traders on any terms. But it is possible for a man of General Evans's purity and sincerity to be misled, to be deceived by these politicians. To say so is no reflection on his ability, but a tribute to his admitted henesty. He must be warned against them

"We feel that General Evans is capable of naking any sacrifice for his party and his state. He made a noble sacrifice to duty when he took the stump in the recent campaign, and, with his friends, saved the party from almost certain defeat. We be lieve he will now measure up to the occasion. We love General Evans, and we want to see him made governor of Georgia on any honorable terms. But he cannot afford to accept the honor on any such conditions. We don't believe he will.

"In our opinion there is but one course ow open to General Evans. He should defeat the unfair and unrighteous purpose of the Atkinson supporters by promptly refus ing to consider the governorship on such terms. He must place himself out of the way, must refuse to contribute to Atkinson's strength by allowing himself to be looked upon as his probable successor. This is Atkinson's strongest card. In playing it he is not dealing fairly with the public or with General Evans. The latter, we know, would not consent to be a party to any political deal that is not open and aboveboard. There is only one way by which he can effectually remove himself from all connection, however innocently, with Atkinson's machinations, and that way is to openly declare that he will not offer for the governorship on any terms that Atkinson and his supporters may suggest." Two Reasons Against Him. From The Hawkinsville Dispatch. Of the five candidates named Governor

Atkinson would be our choice but for two expense of another election for governor and the possible defeat of the party, and the other is that we think it is his duty to masticate the dish of official pie already naced at his disposal before passing his plate for more. In other words we think it would be better for him to follow the example of the late lamented Crisp and bide his time. Governor Atkinson may be able to get there via of the legislature, but if he people had a voice in the matter we be lieve he would be turned down.

Should Be Spared This.

From The Lumpkin Independent. The people are tired of elections, and think that Governor Atkinson should be satisfied to serve out his term as governor of the state, to which he has been elected by a large and complimentary majority, in the face of bitter opposition and strife. He has plenty of time ahead of him in which to gratify his ambition for greater distinction, and it is the sentiment of the people almost unanimously throughout the state that he should now be satisfied with the nonor conferred upon him the second time, practically without opposition this time save the disgruntled and recalcitrant op osition that always exists in every state As governor of the state he has made a wise, conservative and faithful adminis trative officer and the people cheerfully honored him with the second term, but they are unwilling at this stage of political affairs for him to cast aside the sacred rust for greater preferment and plunge the state again and unnecessarily into another political campaign simply because he is nbitious. The people of this county, alnost to a man, solidly protest against 't. There are other applicants for the place fully as competent as Governor Atkinson o fulfill the duties of a United States sen ator with honor and credit to themselves as well as to the state and nation. We have talked with many strong friends of Governor Atkinson, and with former legislators, and they unanimously protest against his entering the race, and they all concur in urging upon our members of the general assembly the wisdom and expediency of selecting some other man than Governor Atkinson to elect as United States senator.

Controlling Reasons Against It.

From The Elberton Star. We are disposed to believe that the dangers of defeat to the democratic party by another election are altogether chimerical, and while the expense necessarily entailed should not alone be considered as controlling reason why another election should not be ordered, yet we do insist that such an election is entirely unnecessarythat the people of Georgia do not desire it -and the agricultural as well as the political interest of the whole people imperatively demand that no more elections than are strictly necessary shall be ordered.

While we have been in the last two campaigns ardent supporters of Governor Atkinson, while the democratic party fully discharged their duty to him, we feel now that he owes a corresponding duty to us If he did not wish the office for the hono it conferred upon him, he should have said so before the election. We have always been taught to believe that the office o governor was the highest which a people could confer-second to none within the g ft of the sovereign people of the state-bu ping stone to higher honors, they should fully discharge their trust to the people who have elected them, before aspiring to what they conceive to be higher honors. The people are sick and tired of elections Reaction has already set in, and they long for peace and harmony of political quietude. Business has been at a standstill long enough, and having for two or three months clamored for the support of the constitutions of the state and federal government, they are now anxious to do some thing for the support of their families. It is said, however, that the election i governor may be ordered on the same day as that for elections of judges, and there fore no more elections will be ordered than we are now compelled to have.

Our reply to this position is that these judicial offices are not considered as party contests. The people are interested in getting the best judges irrespective of party affiliations, and but very little partisan rancor will be engendered in these contests but if an election for governor is ordered, commercial politics will again be revived and the whole state be once more involved n the bitterest partisan struggle. Besides f we wish to win back our populist friends to the democratic party, we should give them time for quiet reflection. Every election engenders new animosities. It is but flaunting the red flag of political opposition into their faces. It is but stirring p new strife and jealousies in the hearts of our defeated opponents. It but causes them to nourish and cherish old partisan prejudices; and as private individuals, who have no political aspirations, who have no friends to make among "men in high places," but whose only desire is to pronote the peace and happiness of the common people, we cry out in the agony of a politically perturbed spirit, "for humanity's sake save us from another election."

It Should Not Be.

From The Rockdale Banner. Next Tuesday the balloting for United States senator will commence. We hope that some other than Governor Atkinson will be elected, not that we have any fight to make against his being elected to the senate, but because the people are against another gubernatorial election. For Governor Atkinson to vacate his chair simply to satisfy his political ambition would be very imprudent and the act would hurt im in the future. There are other mer in the race who are just as well qualified and who will do the party just as good service as Governor Atkinson, and some one of them should be elected.

A Unit Against It.

From The Sandersville Progress. The people of Washington county are ractically a unit in opposition to having another election for governor, not because they oppose Atkinson's advancement to the enate, but because they do not want to undergo the turmoil of another gubernatorial scramble. For this reason they think Govrnor Atkinson should hold his position and not enter into a scramble for senator.

ressons. One is that his promotion to this senator. They do not care to run the state.

We think that Gilmer county has a right to speak out in meeting and ask that Mr. Atkinson not be in the race for senator. His friends, after carrying this county almost solid for him, are surprised to find him hungry for another office. The legislature of Georgia will not elect

SENTIMENT OF MERIWETHER. The People Opposed To an Election.

That Greenville Meeting. Stinson, Ga., November 5, 1896.-Editor Constitution: Within the past few days I have taken especial pains to ascertain the sentiments of the voters of Meriwether county upon the senatorial question Out of 225 registered voters in this district I have not been able to find one who is favorable to Atkinson. This, in face of the fact that Meriwether is Atkinson's old home county, where he has met with the warmest support in the past, and where some of his most influential friends now reside. It is a subject of general comment, and no little ridicule that only five of his political friends met recently at the courthouse in Greenville, constituted themselves a "mass meeting" and proceeded to pass resolutions in dorsing Atkinson for the senate, and reporting them as if they met with the sanction of the people of this county. It is not the truth. Almost every voter in this county, with every other true patriot of Georgia, resents the greedy scran ble for office which Atkinson's selfish ambition prompts him to make. The people of this state much prefer a man who would be satisfied with some little less than the entire earth. DR. N. V. BODDIE.

SPAIN'S YOUNG SOVEREIGN.

Something About This Little Chip of Royalty.

From The New York Times.

Few sons, royal or otherwise, have ever owed so much to their mother as Alfonso XIII of Spain. The most puny and delicate of infants, he has, under her unremittent care, each year from his babyhood become more robust. Afflicted by nature with the most difficult temper, he has, under her firm guidance, learnt to respect and obey, and is already acquiring the first of virtues, that of self-command. Born a king, he has been taught to understand that in his home life he stands, and must throughout his boyhood continue to stand, in complete subjection to his mother. The tribute plete subjection to his mother. The tribut to the character of a strong and grea woman here contained is supported, as it may interest those who are conversant with such things to hear, by Stuart Cum-berland, a "thought reader" of European fame, who thus speaks of her majesty: "I have experimented with many women note, empresses, queens, great authoresses artists, travelers, most of them women o artists, travelers, most of them women of centration of thought and determination of purpose I have scarcely met the equal of the queen regent of Spain."

This is the keynote to the secret of the little monarch's life's training. He born May 17, 1886, near (Madrid, six mor after the death of his father, Alfonso XII. when his sisters, the Infantas Maria de las Mercedes and Maria Theresa, were respectively six and four years of age. The Palace del Pardo, a gloomy residence some eight miles from the capital, was the scene of the young king's birth, his mother naving removed there shortly before, somewhat to the annoyance of the Spaniard considered that the dark forest and the high wall, over fifty miles in length shut her off too completely from her people From his infancy the etiquette of the country has demanded that the king should preside on certain occasions at state coun ils at the recention of the representatives the cathedral of Madrid. An amusing story is told of his majesty on one such occasion when he was too young to understand, bu not too young to be bored. A bishop, whose full designation shall be omitted, was preaching a long sermon, and the monarch's experience had taught him he was expected to remain till it was con-cluded. Quarter of an hour, half, three-quarters passed, and still his lordship went on. At last the child felt he could endur flung them almost at the bishop's feet with such a look of anger and impatienc that the preacher judged it well to bring his discourse abruptly to an end.

When the court leaves Madrid the queer regent and her children generally repair to the pleasant watering place of San Sebastian. Here swimming is their favorite pastime, while the warm waters of the south allow them to spend a much longer ime at the exercise than would be ad in our colder climes. The nerself is an expert swimmer, and to be "as clever in the water as the mother" is a wish the little monarch has often expressed. Holiday time though it nominally is, the juvenile king must still spend many hours at his books. Fortunately for himself, he is not a dull child, and he is specially quick at languages. Spanish, of course, is his native tongue; German he has spoken much with his Austræn mother, and with French, Italian and English he is fairly proficient. The last named he is studying under an English governess, of whom he is very fond, so his progress is rapid, while he often amuses himself by making an Irish secretary in the household of the queen teach him various stang terms, which he brings out when English visitors are present, often as much to their astonishment as their amusement. This, notwithstanding the king has great dignity of his own. He is often as haughty in his bearing as any of his arrogant ancestors, whether of Iberian or of Austrian birth, and it is certain that no one would ever be so ill-advised as to take a liberty with him. "as clever in the water as the mother" is wish the little monarch has often ex-him.

Since he completed his tenth year his majesty has had a complete establishment of his own, but while at the sea the stern rules of the court are to a certain extent relaxed, and he is allowed some little of the freedom which alone makes happines in a young life a possibility.

HOW TO HOLD AN UMBRELLA. It Is Not Every Man Who Understands the Art.

From The Philadelphia Record. Although the uninitiated make casts the state of the weather for days to come, it is fair to suppose that they are right when they predict that we will have a good deal more rain within the next month than we have had during the last two. If this be true (and it undoubtedly is), then it follows that umbrellas will be in demand, and their smooth, silk covers will follow their usual fashion of getting lost who lucky owners try in vain to roll the umbrella itself into the slim neatness it dis-But these and several other minor grievances connected with umbrellas are as trifles compared with their behavior There is only one man in a hundred who knows how to properly carry an open umbrella, and the woman who can accomplish the feat is as yet a pleasing fream. Professor Alfred Eldridge, of Montreal, Makes a Find.

IN THE WILDS OF ALASKA

High Up in the Northwest Evidence of the Past Ages Are Discovered.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

In the midst of wild Alaska territory, previously unmarked by footprints of modern civilization, an American Pompeii has been discovered by Professor Alfred Eldridge, of Montreal. Professor Eldridge left his home in the Canadian city to explore untown. Alaska, over fully years are known Alaska over four years ago, and was thought to have been lost and destroywas thought to have been lost and destroy-ed by savages in the great northern forests. His friends and relatives were most agree-ably surprised when he suddenly appeared about former haunts, and likewise much interested in the remarkable tale of long wanderings and astonishing discoveries in the perilous savage region of darkest America he told.

"My trip up to the time I reached the un-"My trip up to the time I reached the unexplored region was neither especially interesting nor novel," said Professor Eldridge. "Months of my time were spent at first in traveling over a vast country, the characteristics of which have been told and retold by explorers, and I could add nothing new to its description from my hurried passage to the border of the unknown districts. I was surprised at the number of Indian vilages, having no connection with civilization, through which I passed, however, although the existence of some was well known to me.

"Being almost exhausted with the rough means of travel I was forced to endure, I was never so pleased in my life as when I reached the mouth of Kuwalik river, on the shore of Kotzebue sound. Here I encountered a small settlement of Indians who were much surprised at my desire to proceed up the stream. I was informed that there was no settlements or living creatures in the high forest regions to which it led, and that no white man had ever attempted to enter the wild, secluded

"The chief did all in his power to persuade me to abandon my project, ex ing unbearable perils galore which I would certain to enc ounter, and finally, find ing my determination unshaken when he had finished, I was further acquainted with a horrible Indian superstition regarding the secluded land. I stopped my attention was drawn to a spot hair way up a steep peak, which had evi-dently suffered some recent disturbance. On arriving at the s.tuat.on I saw that a great body of earth had broken away and rolled down the mountain. The first thing to attract me was the discoverey of a small to attract me was the discoverey of a small piece of broken earthenware, light brown in color, with an artistically worked trimming of Greek design worked in black p.g. ment. It was just such a piece as those I had found in New Mexico some years before, and any one can imagine my amazement at its discovery in that quarter.

"I turned quickly to scan the sides of the earth where the avalanche had torn it apart, and in the m.dst of the crev.ce, not apart, and in the m.dst of the crev.ce, not apart, and in the m.dst of the crev.ce, not apart, and in the m.dst of the crev.ce, not apart, crumbling and broken, but showing beyond all doubt, even at that distance, that the builder was human. This wall was a little over six feet deep in the ground I discovered on arriving at its location, that both of its ends were lost in the ground about it. On making further investigations I found evidences of numerous other walls.

"It soon became evident to me that I had

"It soon became evident to me that I had discovered an American Pompeli through the work of the avalanche. The remains of houses I saw were undoubtedly those of a prehistoric city, covered with earth and debris, which had hidden ft through some volcanic action, possibly during, but most likely long after, its desertion, centuries on centuries ago.

"The first wall I discovered, the one mostly covered, was three feet thick and of stone throughout, and others close by were even five feet in width. All of the masonry was of beautiful symmetry, constructed of hewn sandstone blocks of an approximately even size, laid in strong mortar beds, and with the joints broken." mortar beds, and with the joints broken."
"There were many pieces of broken pottery and other articles of Jomestic uselying around the ruins. But I sought higher game, and after preparing a wooden handle to a copper spade, which I picked up on the scene, I went to digging most amount of the property mingled surprise and expectancy almost immediately my antiquated spade unearthed a few more fragments of pottery, which seemed an ominous sign. The deeper I dug the more of these were turned up, and among the pieces I found the relies of a prehistoric Alaskan race, which I now possess.

I had, perhaps, oug directly into some long-deceased resident's china closet; if so, he was very likely a warrior who kept his implements of battle upon the bottom shelf, for the last articles my spade revealed were mixed sizes of arrows, spears of odd designs, scrapers, hitchets and drills.

"I proceeded to explore someone else's unknown quarters, and dug into a square room which had no windows in the walls. Here I found some of the finest specimens of pottery I have ever seen. They were beautifully decorated, and finished in a way that is a lost art to modern powers.

Electric Cars To Be Used in Crossing Brooklyn Bridge.

From The New York Recorder.

The steam locometives which have been in use on the bridge since the span was strung across the East river will soon be withdrawn from service and give place to the compact little motors, the trial of which recently proved so successful.

The only change made in the cars wo collectors on the roof. All the electrical are more massive, and there are two collectors on the roof. All the electrical apparatus for controlling the motors is lidden from sight beneath the car, and all that can be noticed, unless specially locked for, are two additional spindles on the platform.

There is a great contrast between the ungainty locomotive, with its mass of wheels, springs, steam chests and both and bars, which every one has been so accustomed to, and the powerful motors of cleverly hidden beneath the body of the coach, and which do away with all such inconveniences as noise, steam, gases and smoke of the locomotive.

The plan for the work of motors which has been decided on will be to use the electric motor car for switching purpose principally, and for this purpose ta'n number of cars will be furnished these principally, and for this purpose at an number of cars will be furnished the motors, one on each axle. ROGRESS OF ANDERSON TRIAL th Men Were Recognized at the Scene of the Murder.

LIFE OF REESE AND MRS. ANDERSON PAINTED

Compromising Remarks and Acts of the Prisoners Told by Persons Who Have Studied the Case.

Yorkville, S. C., November 6 .- (Special.)-Interest in the Reese, Luckie and Anderson murder trial was even greater today than yesterday. A large number of people came down from Blacksburg and a great many came in from the sourrounding country, while the balance of the crowd was I made up of Yorkville citizens.

Among the women in the courtroom were Mrs. Charles T. Williams, widow of the deceased; Mrs. O. A. Osborne, of Blacksburg; Miss Mary Farrington; Mesdames Patterson, Calloway and Anderson, the last named being one of the defendants.

Much of the testimony was unexpectedly direct in its character, and several times the defense appeared considerably worried. Judge Watts has been persistently ruling against the prosecution as to evidence showing the relations between Reese and Mrs. Anderson, and the probable motive for the murder, and on account of this the cution seems to be somewhat dis-

Mrs. Anderson showed signs of extreme pervousness all day, and this afternoon as some testimony that seemed to throw pretty strong light on her probable relations with Reese came out, she appeared to faint,

The first witness sworn this morning was J. W. Thomson, proprietor of the Merchants' hotel. He related the circumstances of Williams's arrival in Blacksburg, and dentified the name "J. H. Williams" on the hotel register as having been written by him. He related all the circumstances that developed after the finding of the body, and identified the various articles that he and Mr. Duncan had taken from the body of the deceased. The revolver was found in the inside pocket of a tightly buttoned vest. Practically all the facts in his testimony have already been printed.

Just before Thomson took the stand the lady witnesses for the prosecution retired from the courtroom. This was because of certain testimony as to the identity of cer-tain articles that had been found in the pockets of the deceased. The cross-examination of Thomson developed nothing ma-

Ira Hardin, surveyor, swore to the cor-rectness of a plat of the scene of the killing that he had made and gave the distance from the scene of the killing to Mrs. Farrington Saw the Men.

Miss Mary Farrington testified that on the night of the killing she was reading in an upper room in the residence of G. M. Moore. About 9:30 o'clock she heard three pistol shots, one, and then after an interval two more. She marked the place in her book, "Household Angel in Disguise," and placed it in her trunk. Then she walked out on the piazza, closing the door behind her. Looking across the street she saw two men at a point just fourteen steps

She had seen a man going along the same side of the street she was on, carrying a lantern, a little after the shooting, but did not recognize the man. Just after the shooting she had heard footsteps going up the street, but they suddenly died away and she heard nothing more of them. Why Reese and Mrs. Osborne Fussed. Mrs. O. A. Osborne was recalled to testify the cause of the quarrel Reese had with her. The defense objected and the jury was ent out. Mrs. Osborne then told the story. Reese had accused her of talking about maself and Mrs. Anderson. She denied that she had done such a thing and then Reese had insulted her by intimating improper conduct on her part. Judge Watt ruled that this had no bearing on the case and the jury was brought back into the Courtreces.

Mrs. Charles T. Williams, widow of the deceased, was the next witness. She is a rather good looking woman of perhaps thirty-five years of age and has a thoughting she knew her husband was off on a trip, but did not know where. She identified a large number of letters found among her husband's papers, and these were put in evidence.

HON. WILLIAM J. BRYAN TO BIMETALLISTS

Tells Them a Good Fight Has Been Made and That Four Years Will Bring Renewed Strength.

Lincoln, Neb., November 6.-Mr. Bryan this afternoon gave out the following

"To the Bimetallists of the United States: "Conscious that millions of loyal hearts are saddened by temporary defeat, I beg to offer a word of hope and encouragement. No cause ever had supporters more brave, earnest and devoted than those who have espoused the cause of bimetallism. They fought from conviction, and have fought with all the zeal which conviction inspires. Events will prove whether they are right or wrong. Having done their duty as they saw it, they have nothing to "The republican candidate has been heralded as the advance agent of prosperity. If his policies bring real prosperity to the American people, those who support him will share in that prosperity. If, on the other hand, his policies prove an injury to the people generally, those of his supporters who do not belong to the office-holding class or to the privileged classes will suffer in common with those who opposed him.

"The friends of bimetallism have not been vanquished; they have simply been overcome. They believe that the gold standard is a conspiracy of the money changers against the welfare of the human race, and until convinced of their error they will continue the warfare against it.

"The contest has been waged this year under great embarrassments and against great odds. For the first time during this generation public attention has been centered upon the money question as the peramount issue and this has been done, in spite of all attempts upon the part of our opponents to prevent it. The republican convention held out the delusive hope of international bimetallism, while the republican leaders labored secretly for gold monometallism. Gold standard democrats have publicly advocated the election of the Indianapolis ticket, while they labored secretly for the election of the republican ticket. Trusts and corporations have tried to excite a fear of lawlessness, while they have been defying the law, and American financiers have boasted that they were the custodians of national honor while they were secretly bartering away the nation's financial independence. "But in spite of the efforts of the administration and its supporters; in spite of the threats of the money loaners at home and abroad; in spite of the coercion practiced by corporations and employers; in spite of trusts and syndicates; in spite of an enormous republican campaign fund and in spite of the influence of a hostile daily press, bimetallism has almost triumphed in its first great fight. The loss of a few states, and that, too, by a very small plurality, has defeated bimetallism for the present, but bimetallism emerges from the contest stronger than it was four months ago.

"I desire to commend the work of the three national committees which have joined in the management of this campaign. Co-operation between the members of distinct political organizations is always difficult, but it has been less so this year than usual. Interest in a common cause of great importance has reduced friction to a minimum. I hereby express my personal gratitude to the individual members, as well as to the executive officers of the national democratic committees, populist and silver, for their efficient, untiring and unselfish labors. They have laid the foundation for future success and will be remembered as pioneers when victory is at last secured.

"No personal nor political friend need grieve because of my defeat. My ambition has been to secure immediate legislation rather than to enjoy the honors of office. Therefore defeat brings to me no feeling of personal loss. Speaking for the wife who has shared my labors, as well as for myself. I desire to say that we have been amply repaid for all that we have done.

"In the love of millions of our fellow citizens, so kindly expressed, and in the knowledge gained by personal contact with the people and broadened sympathies, we feel fully compensated for whatever efforts we have put forth. Our hearts have been touched by the devotion of friends, and our lives shall prove our appreciation of the affection of the plain people, an affection which we prize as the richest reward which this campaign has brought.

"In the face of an enemy rejoicing in its victory, let the roll be called for the engagement, and I urge all friends of bimetallism to renew allegiance to the cause. If we are right, as I believe we are, we shall triumph. Until convinced of his error, let each advocate of bimetallism continue the work. Let all free silver clubs retain their organization, hold regular meetings and circukey or unboited the door and walked in. late literature. Our opponents have succeeded in this campaign and must now put their theories to the test. Instead of talking about 'sound money' and 'honstep taken by them should be publicly considered by the silver clubs. Our cause has prospered most where the money question has been longest discussed among the people.

"During the next four years it will be studied all over this nation even more than it has been studied in the past. The year 1900 is not far away. Before that year arrives international bimetallism will cease to deceive, for ere that year has arrived, those who have called themselves gold standard democrats will become bimetallists and be with us or they will become republicans and thus open enemies.

"Before the year arrives I trust we will have convinced still more people that a trust is a menace to private welfare and to public safety; before that year arrives the evils of a gold standard will be even more evident than they are now and the people will then be ready to demand an American financial policy for the American people and will join with us in the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. "W. J. BRYAN."

that she had been visited at her home in Tunnell Hill, Ga., by Detective M. H. D. L. Brown had known Reese for nine years. On Saturday morning after the tragedy Reese told the witness and Ab Whisonant that he had made arrangement to visit Mrs. Anderson that night after Luckie returned.

On cross examination the witness admitted that he had had a difficulty with the defendant but said he bore no ill will. He was interested in the prosecution only as a citizen and had offered to pay the Holland tive agency $250 on condition that they catch Reese.

Joe Hayden had acted as a substitute for Constable Allison in serving papers at the inquest. He served a paper on Reese. Reese appeared to be very nervous and asked the witness:

What do you suppose they want with Reese also said to the witness that people were trying to connect him with the kill-ing, but that he had nothing to do with it. He often went to see Mrs. Anderson, of course, but then, by way of parenthesis, "She keeps my books and does writing for me, you know?"

On cross examination the witness admitted that he had had a quarrel with Reese some time before, but claimed that he was not influenced in his testimony or action by any such consideration.

Withers Hears the Shots.

R. S. Withers was the next witness. He was at the residence of Mr. Jackson on the night of the shooting. He heard the shots, one and then two. He was standing on the plazza. Judging from the sound of the re-port, the first shot was fired about opposite the residence of Reese and the other two between the residence of Reese and Mrs.

The first shot was muffled and the next two came clearer. He heard that Reese owned a thirty-eight caliber pistol and had heard him shoot it in his yard on previous occasions. The last two shots sounded as Reese contended that people were trying to connect him with this thing, "But so help me God I am innocent as anybody."

Reese told the witness that it was his custom to go over to Mrs. Anderson's of evenings, and if he desired to return they would exchange winks. This would mean that Reese would come back after Luckle should retire. On one occasion the wit-ness saw Reese coming out of Mrs. Anderon's house. Reese had no coat on. He saw the witness and turned back.

J. J. Jackins, aged about fourteen years, was put up to testify to the criminally timate relations between Reese and Mrs. It developed, however, that the circum stance of which he had knowledge had developed some months before and the testimony was not allowed.

The fact of the exchange of notes be tween Mrs. Anderson and the deceased on the day of the killing was proven by two pegroes, and Postmaster Guyton identifie the notes as being in the handwriting of Mrs. Anderson.

At adjournment this evening at 6 o'clock the state had two more witnesses to put up and will close tomorrow morning. It is admitted on all sides that the testimony for the prosecution so far has gone in with remarkable directness and force.

Attorneys for Defendant Say That Evidence Has Been Found Showing He Did Not Murder.

Rome, Ga.. November 6 .- (Special.)-Lester Echols, the young man who is charged with killing Marshal Tidwell, of Seney, was aptured this morning and is now in the Floyd county jail.

Tidwell had arrested Echols and was on his way to the lock up with him when Echols, it is alleged, fired the fatal shot and scaped in the darkness.

The town authorities offered $100 re-ward for his capture and to this Governor Atkinson added a reward of $200 by the state for his apprehension. It was thought at first that he had gone west, but hints dropped by his relatives led the officers to believe that he was hiding out in the

Wednesday night Deputy Sheriff Dallas Turner and ex-Policeman Copeland went down to old man Echols's home, near Seney, to look for the fugitive, and during the night they made a raid on the gin-house and found twenty or thirty bales of seed cotton piled up in the second story. They tramped all over the pile of cotton and made what they considered a thorough search of the premises, failed to find Echols.

A Queer Hiding Place. Yesterday morning they made another search of the ginhouse and accidentally discovered the hiding place of the fugitive in the second story of the building where the cotton was piled. He had dug a tunnel under the pile of cotton about three feet square, and back near the wall had excavated a place hig enough to sit in upright and managed to secure fresh air through a crack in the floor. He had remained in hiding there during the day and only venturing out at night when the coast was clear to stretch his cramped limbs for more than a month. The officers had trampled all ove the pile of cotton, the cavity in which he was concealed being protected by planking. The entrance was completely hidden by cotton and but for the fact that he ad become frightened and hurriedly cated his place of concealment, they might never have discovered his lair.

After leaving his place of concealmen Echols started to Rome to give himsel up, and went first to the residence of Bob Brewer, a friend of his. W. H. Kirkpatrick, a farmer living near Fish creek, saw him passing through a field, recognized him, and wishing to se cure the reward went to Brewer's house last night and demanded Echols's surrender. Being unarmed Echols gave himself up without resistance. Sheriff Clements and Ordinary Brewer of Polk county, were notified and took charge of the prisoner. The party then proceeded to Seney, where they were met by Sheriff McConnell, who brought the prisoner here and placed him in juil.

Today Mrs. Echols, Lester's mother, came to Rome and employed Wright & Ewing to defend the case. Mr. Ewing went to Seney and after a thorough investiga-

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual dis-ease, but simply to a constipated condi-tion of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, prompt-iy removes. That is why it is the only nedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its bene-ficial effects, to note when you pur-chase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all rep-utable druggists.

HIS DEATH DELAYED

Motion for Ryder's New Trial Will No. Be Argued Today.

SUPERSEDEAS MAY BE GIVEN

Testimony in the Case Has Not Been Transcribed by the Court Reporter Yet.

Columbus, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)— The motion for a new trial in the Ryder case was to have been heard in this city tomorrow, but it now develops that the hearing will not take place then. This is cause the testimony in the case has no all been reduced to writing. The trial consumed several days and a very large amount of testimony was taken, so much that the court reporter, on account of other duties, has not had sufficient time to translate all his stenographic notes. It will take several days yet to finish the task. This being the case, when the attorneys come before him tomorrow, Judge Butt will probably pass an order of super-sedeas, staying proceedings in the case until all the testimony is in shape and the notion for the new trial is heard. he day for the execution, but if the motion is not heard by that time the execution will have to be deferred. It is thought now that the hearing of the motion will hardly take place before that time, and that on tomorrow Judge Butt will pass an order suspending the judgment temporarily. In case the motion is refused the case will be taken to the supreme court.

Dr. Ryder continues in wretched health at the jail at this city.

Two Big Stills Destroyed. Captain N. G. Oattis, a United States deputy collector, and J. R. Cornett, exdeputy marshal, have just returned from a big raid in Harris county. During Wednesday night the two officers found and destroyed a large illicit distillery which conusand gallons of whisky in

The still was between Hamilton and Whiteville, on what is known as the "Peg Factory" place. The distillery was located on a creek at the foot of a perpendicular bluff of thirty feet height. At the foot of the cliff a cave had been dug and in this hiding place the manufacture of mountain dew had gone serenely on.

The officers destroyed the five thousand gallons of beer on hand and also the distilling apparatus. The haul was the biggest one ever made in Harris county, noted as it is for its numerous blockade distilleries within its borders. From this still the two officers went to King Gap, above Hamilton, where they discovered another violation of the revenue laws. Up to last fall a government distillery was operated at this place, but a few months ago the proprietor discontinued his license and it was supposed that the man ufacture of liquor at this establishment had stopped also. The officers Wednesday night overed the distillery to be in full blast Notwithstanding the late hour of the night, 4 o'clock, about a dozen men were present. There were also twelve jugs on hand. When the officers appeared on the scene the men fied to the mountains. The officers did not arrest any one, as they were empowered to destroy only, and not to arrest. They destroyed the whisky on hand.

Some Interesing Facts About the Colossal Shaft. From The Washington Star.

The distance at which the monument is visible has always been a matter of debatable interest with Washington people. Not a train approaches that city, nor a boat speeds up or down the Potomac, but carries a group of people anxious to see at just what point they can last see the white marble against the sky as they depart or first find it as they return. Probably the greatest distance at which the monument is seen is from the summit of the Blue Ridge at Snicker's Gap, a distance of about forty-three miles in an air line. The elevation there is 2,000 feet above the Potomac. The mountaineers years ago, with their keen eyes trained to long and sharp sight in the mountains, detected the white spot gleaming on the horizon. and they can always quickly determine its place on the horizon line. But to city folks, however, the location of the white shaft not an easy matter. Thousands of Washington people every summer invade that region as summer boarders, to subsist on fresh milk and fried chicken, and incifresh milk and tried chicken, and inci-dentally in their excursions up on the mountain to get a sight of the monument. On clear days it is distinctly visible, especially to those who are familiar with its precise location. But it is more easily seen at sunset than at any other hour, as the sharp reflection of the sun's rays brings out the white surface of the marble. The mountain people are only too glad to point out the monument to their visitors, and usually tell them the secret by which they can themselves locate it. This is by finding first on the horizon line the slight elevation of contour presented by Munson's hill. Then, slightly to the left, perhaps one degree, there it is. The point from which the monument was first seen from the Blue Ridge is the mountain farm of Mr. Louis P. Shoemaker, of this city, and the place is called "Monument View." One of the most singular stories that may be told about the Washington monument is hardly credible, yet it can be vouched for as perfectly true. There are hundreds of ladies in Washington who wear upon their hats the plumage or the entire skin of a bird which has lost its life flying against the tall mass of marble in the dimness of twilight or daybreak. Every morning one of the watchmen who spends the night in the monument finds about its base quite a number of birds who have lost their lives in this way. This mortality is not limited to any one specie, but in-cludes nearly all the birds known in this region. Strange to say, few English sparrows lose their lives by flying against the monument, but the beautiful golden finches, cedar birds, starlings, tanagers, grosbeaks and many others of bright plumage and great rarity have been found. The watchman takes these birds up town to a taxidermist, who stuffs and mounts the rarer specimens, which are sold for a good round price to collectors, and the skins of those less rare are prepared for the milthose less rare are prepared for the milliner. Hardly a morning comes that there are less than a score of dead birds about the base of the shaft.

OF ATLANTA, GA.

Another queer thing to know about the monument is that its height and width vary. It is taller in summer than in winer, and in the latter season its width on the south side is about an inch greater than on the north, east or west sides. This is due to expansion under the heat of the sun's rays. This phenomenon was dethe sun's rays. This phenomenon was de-termined by Captain Greene during the erection of the shaft. Plumb lines were hung at each corner of the marble wall, and the plumb "bobs" or plummets were suspended in pots of glycerin and molas-ses. Across the top of each pot was laid a finely graduated steel bar, and three times a day an army engineer "took off" the registration thus made of the expan-sion of the walls. It was held that the plummets moved precisely with the points sion of the walls. It was held that the plummets moved precisely with the points at which the plumb lines were attached to the top of the shaft, and the giverin held them firmly without vibration or oscillation, so that the officer could note any change of position. All these registrations, twice a day every day of the year, were recorded in a book during the seven years that were occupied in finishing the monument.

Of the public by sustaining practical and honorable methods. The average span of life allotted to specialists who advertise their services is from one to two years, and with the average case, newspaper advertising only serves to bring out the imperfections of the advertiser. The people have been so often disappointed that they have inclined to suspect bad falth on the part of the advertiser. This rule, however, does not apply to Dr. Hathaway & Co. Old residents who observe the patients daily going to the office of these specialists, recall the fact that they saw the same thing six years ago. It is thoroughly understood that the doctors have adopted skillful and honorable methods for the treatment of the sick; that they fulfill all their promises, and that they find it easy to sustain a reputation made years ago. This explains why public confidence in Dr. Hathaway & Co. seems permanent and unchangeable, while others flourish bravely for a little while and are then seen no more. That these physicians are highly successful is seen by the fact of the many cures perfected of allments which in many cases were pronounced incurable by reputable physicians. In many instances through gratitude for the physicians and a desire to aid their fellow sufferers, these cured patients publicly recommend these expert specialists.

NICHOLS & HOLLIDAY, Constitution

ATLANTA, GA., November 7, 1896.

As to the Senatorial Contest.

On the assembling of the legislature and before any announcements for the United States senate were made. The Constitution, realizing the grave danger that would confront the party should another state election be precipitated, urged Governor Atkinson not to contribute to the bringing on of such an unnecessary emergency by entering the contest for the senate.

This was several days before the inauguration of the governor for his second term and before any definite announcement concerning his candidacy was issued, the people and the press with exceptional unanimity protesting against another state campaign, even at the suggestion of the governor's candidacy. Governor Atkinson, for reasons satisfactory to himself, became a candidate, evidently not being impressed with the argument that the people did not want another state campaign. and that the party should not be subjected to the strain of another state election.

The Constitution firmly believes that the forcing of another election at this time by a democratic legislature would be the most unfortunate thing that could happen to the party in this state.

It would be resented by the people and those responsible for it would be rebuked by their constituents.

We have endeavored to make it clear that there would be no possible justification for the calling of another election, involving as it does, a direct expense to the state of not less than $60,000, not to speak of the collateral loss in disturbance to business and the bitterness and excitement that would

For many years The Constitution has done its part in fighting the battles of the party, and it felt that it was its duty to speak plainly when the party was confronted with a danger so threatening as that involved in the forcing tion as democratic assemblymen gave every assurance to their democratic conwould be duly considered and adequately cared for at their hands. We have sought to impress this upon the people and upon the general assembly, and we believe that nine-tenths of the democrats of Georgia indorse the attitude of The Constitution in opposing another election, and that more than threefourths of the members of the general assembly think likewise.

If any member of the legislature has been deceived by reports of alleged "mass meetings" it would be well for him to investigate and see if such meetings were representative ones, or the result of county judgeship or solicitorship applications, or other such patronage depending upon executive action.

In opposing Governor Atkinson, we do so as a party duty, for we believe that another state election at such an inopportune time, and under such unfavorable conditions, would be a calamity which the party must not be made to suffer. The Constitution has no personal attack to make on Governor Atkinson-on the other hand it has warmly commended his administration; but the interests of the party must be considered, and we believe that it would be a most serious blunder were the democratic legislature to plunge the party into this unnecessary complication. The Constitution says this without regard to the interests of any candidate, and solely on account of the interest it feels in the continued welfare and success of the party. There are several candidates already announced, and the names of other prominent Georgians have been mentioned, and from among the list it would seem that some satisfactory choice might be made without endangering the strength or weakening the prestige of the party.

A Patriotic Address.

Every one who reads the loyal and patriotic address of Mr. Bryan, published in this issue of The Constitution, must recognize the breadth of character which the language of the democratic

There is nothing in the letter which savors in the least of personal regret. On the contrary, it breathes throughout a spirit of complete submission to the will of the majority as expressed at the ballot box on last Tuesday. The let-

In the brilliant fight which Mr. Bryan has led against the single gold standard there has been no taint of selfishess. On the altar of a great cause he has dedicated his partiotic zeal, and, with the oil of consecration upon his brow, he has fought a magnificent battle. Failure has no humiliation for such a champion. In defeat he sustains himself with all the grace of a victor.

Speaking of the result Mr. Bryan says: "No personal or political friend need grieve because of my defeat. My ambition has been to secure immediate legislation rather than to enjoy the honors of office, and defeat, therefore, brings to me no feeling of personal loss."

With respect to the single gold standard Mr. Bryan states in his letter that the next four years will only serve to point out its shortcomings and to evince more clearly than ever the need of bimetallism. He urges the people to make a thorough study of the money question and to keep the great issue constantly before them. Says Mr. Bryan:

Instead of talking mysteriously about "sound money" and "an honest dollar," they must now elaborate and defend a finanical system. Every step taken them should be publicly considered by the silver clubs. Our cause has pros-pered most where the money question has been longest discussed among the people. During the next four years it will be studied all over this nation even more than it has been studied in the

These prophetic words of the democratic nominee will doubtless be fully verifled within the period of which he speaks. Like the sturdy fabric of the hills, the principle of bimetallism is enduring, and though defeat may overcome it for a while its eventual triumph is sure to come.

A Well-Deserved Honor. In the appointment of Hon. T. B. Felder, of Fuiton, as chairman of the house committee on general judiciary, Speaker Jenkins has paid a handsome tribute to a young man who is destined to become an important factor in the affairs of Georgia.

This is the first time that the chairmanship of this, the most important committee, has gone to a member serving his first term in the legislature. Usually a man must have won his spurs in one branch of the general assembly or the other before he is considered at all in connection with one of the leading chairmanships; but in this instance the honor has come to a new man, and it came to him unsought. It is a tribute in every way deserved.

Mr. Felder is not only an able lawyer. but is a man thoroughly equipped in the executive qualities essential to this position. He has already taken stand as one of the leaders of the house, and his appointment to this important chairmanship is an honor which the citizens of this county, his constituents, and his many friends throughout the state thoroughly appreciate.

Not Without Bloodshed.

The reign of Queen Victoria, though characterized by a wonderful progress in the arts of peace, has not been wholly free from bloodshed.

On the contrary, there has scarcely been a year since her accession to the throne in which the British flag has not been a symbol of defiance on some deadly field of encounter.

The following is a list of the various wars which England has waged during ne long reign of Victoria:

Afghan war, 1830-40; first China war, M1; Sikh war, 1845-46; Kaffir, 96; second war with China, sec-Afghan war, 1849; Sikh war, 1848-49; Burmese war, 1850; second Kaffir war, 1851-52; second Burmese war, 1852-53; Crimea, 1854; third war with China, 1856-58; Indian mutiny, 1857; Maori war, 860-61; more war with China, 1860 and 1862; second Maori war, 1863-66; Ashanti war, 1864; war in Bhootan, 1864; Abyssinian war, 1867-68; war with Bazotees, 1868; third Maori war, 1868-69; war with Looshais, 1871; second Ashanti war, 1873-74; third Kaffir war, 1877: Zulu war, 1878-79; third Afghan war, 1878-80; war in Basutoland, 1879-81; Travaal war, 1879-81; Egyptian war, 1882; Soudan, 1884-85-89; third Burmese war, 1885-92; Zanzibar, 1890; India, 1890; Matabele wars, 1894 and 1896; Chitral campaign, 1895; third Ashanti campaign, 1896; second Soudan campaign, 1896.

In only one of these fierce conflicts was the foe opposed to England of the same color as her own Ango-Saxon subjects. It was during the famous Crimean war that she was thus brought in collision with a white enemy. The remaining engagements have been for the most part with Indians and Africans. At present she is making a desperate effort to conquer the Soudan, in which enterprise she made a disastrous failure under General Gordon some twelve

A Generous Foe.

In the campaign which has closed no two gold standard organs have kept more rigidly within the bounds of editorial courtesy or served with better success the financial principles which they espoused than The Washington Post and The Springfield Republican. Without claiming a monopoly of patriotism or indulging in the coarse methods of abuse which other newspapers have employed, these two great dailies have occupied a high plane of controversy from the start, and discussed the issues of the campaign in a spirit which has challenged the respect of the entire

With most of the papers on the gold side of the money question the trouble has been in a disposition to utterly ignore the rules of debate. There has never been a campaign in which offensive epithets have been more frequently employed than by the advocates of the single gold standard during the campaign which has just closed; and yet since the birth of the republic down to the present time there has never been a governmental principle espoused with ple. greater sincerity or higher motives of patriotism than the principle of free

In commenting upon the result of last Tuesday's election The Springfield Republican deplores the bitterness which the recent fight over the money question | with its platform pledges and produce ter is a model of its kind, and shows has disclosed. It recognizes the sin- as much misery and disaster throughthat Mr. Bryan, while still unwavering cerity, however, with which the people out the country as that which took

It is only fair to say that the bearing of Mr. Bryan has been such as to invite and hold the popular respect. It is possible to dissent from many of his opinions and yet recognize the brilliant, persistent, desperate fortitude that has made his leadership pervasive beyond precedent. It was his fight, and he has shrunk from no labors and spared no expenditure of strength in the battle which has ended in his defeat. Out of the material at its command the Chicago convention made no mistake in committing its cause to the orator who carried its vention made no mistake in committing its cause to the orator who carried its favor by storm. No other man could have led its disorganized and clashing interests with the same courage and untiring faith, or directed a crude campaign to any better weather. paign to any better results. That the faith of this man in his cause has been unquestioned and unfailing no one need

While the tribute to Mr. Bryan con tained in the foregoing paragraph is just, and only such a tribute as any truthful goldbug organ in the country could afford to pay him, it is at the same time generous. It comes from the heart of New England and from a newspaper which has steadily opposed his presidential aspirations, and is, there fore, a tribute which the democratic nominee has good reason to prize.

John H. Inman.

The death of Mr. John H. Inman de prives the country of one of its most liberal, enterprising and patriotic citizens, and removes from the scene of the nation's activities one of its most sagacious, far-seeing and progressive busi-

Mr. Inman was essentially a business man, but in his case this phrase must be given a larger and a wider meaning than it usually imparts to the mind. He was among the highest types of that development which has been made nec essary by the enlarged methods and demands of modern commerce.

In the competition that these enlarged methods have made possible the business man who is ambitious to be conspicuous ly successful must have at his command all those intellectual resources that mark a great general. His mental equipment must be perfect. His knowledge of hu man nature must be thorough. He must be able to seize opportunities before his competitors discover them. He must have an intuitive forecast of results. He must be able to grasp and analyze the most complex situations. More than that he must be able, by his influence on smaller men and by force of example, to control the market at critical moments.

All these qualities and these gifts Mr. Inman had in abundance, and it was these that made him easily the most successful and influential business man that operated on the floor of the New York cotton exchange.

Though he was cosmopolitan in his business methods and ideas-a citizen of the world so far as his influence and operations went-Mr. Inman was intensely and patriotically American in his views, and his strong regard for the south, its people and its interests, would have been regarded as provincial in a smaller man.

The south has contributed to New York some of the most prominent and successful business men of that city, and Mr. Inman stood at the head of this contingent. He stood at its head and not one among the number ever carried in his heart a sincerer love for the section that gave him birth.

Such was his interest in the material development of this section that for a number of years he devoted a large share of his capital and much of his time to the unbuilding of our rai way and iron interests. The investments that he made here afforded him small profit, but the material results that he accomplished were a constant source of gratification.

Ordinarily, when a man dies his place is soon filled and his absence ceases to be even a memory. But there is no one to take the place of Mr. Inman in the affairs where he was the master mind and leader. We do not refer particularly to his private business affairs, but to those large enterprises and transactions which he himself conceived and carried out. More than this, it will be hard to find a citizen so public spirited-a man full of the cares and responsiblities that success brings, who will be so ready to devote himself to the promotion of the public interest.

Mr. Inman died at an age when it might be supposed that he was in the prime of life, and yet he had accomplished more than the great majority of men who live to a ripe old age.

Consoling Reflections. An exchange refers to the election of Mr. McKinley as "Mr. Cleveland's victory." This phrase tells the whole story, and yet the men who are going about claiming to be the depositories of all democratic knowledge and all democratic principles are the very men who have contributed whatever influence they have to reduce the democratic party to a state of wreckage.

As an evidence of the attraction which the new code of democracy has for those who know what democratic principles are, it is only necessary to refer to the fact that the candidates representing this new code received less than three hundred votes in Fulton ounty.

In other words, if there are any voters who have been impressed by the new code, which reverses the old, it has simply has been the means of leading them into the republican party. The exchange from which we have quoted was not alluding to Mr. Cleveland personally, but to the doctrines which he substituted for the democratic platform of 1892. Mr. Cleveland will retire from the white nouse next March for the second time, and both times he has given place to a republican sucessor. It would appear from this that the doctrines by which he hoped to build up the democratic party are not particularly agreeable to a majority of the American peo-

There can be no doubt that Mr. Bryan lost many a vote that he would otherwise have gained from that large element which is bound to no party but for the fear that another democratic administration would deal as cavalierly and the true democrats who rallied to his standard had not only to against those who believe in rep ism, but against the large floating vote which takes only a superficial view of and interest in parties. Therefore the democratic party, led by Mr. Bryan had to contend against the fears and suspicions of those who knew that an administration which called itself democratic was in a large measure responsible for the disasters that have fallen upon the land since 1893. Though they might indorse every principle set forth in the platform of 1896, they remembered that the platform of 1892 was a very promising document. In short, thousands who voted for the democratic candidates in 1892 were so disgusted with the result that they could not be prevailed on to vote for those who called themselves democrats on any platform. Before criticising this element too harshly let us bear in mind the fact that buman nature at its best is weak, and that prejudices are sometimes much more powerful than truth.

As for the wretched experiment to build up a so-called "democratic" party out of the doctrines fished from the republican trash barrel, it may be said that it has already collapsed-a fate that must always attend an effort to make democracy stand for the doctrines that it antagonizes. It should be said in behalf of those who were weakminded enough to smile on the experiment that they early saw through the intentions of the men who had placed themselves at the head of the movement, and joined the republican contingent.

We see that the ridiculous Bynum is trying to make himself conspicuous again by going about holding "consultations" as to the advisability of organizing Mr. Hanna's decoy duck brigade into "true democratic" party. What the object of this is no man can say. Those so-called democrats who voted for Mr. McKinley are now republicans, and they are not likely to fall into line with a party that has neither head nor tail, and that is without voters.

It is easy to see now that those who have had Mr. Cleveland's car have made it their especial business to advise him to carry out a policy which they thought would hopelessiv wreck the party that had honored him so highly. That the president is a man easily persuaded where he has not made up his mind is shown by the fact that while he was a free trader in 1884, he was eager to accept Mr. Randall's tariff doctrine in 1888, and would have done so but for Mr. Watterson and other aggressive free traders.

But there was one element that those who wanted the party wrecked left altogether out of view-the people. The would-be wreckers knew they could corral and control a good many leaderssome of them supposed to be very influential-and they imagined that the rest would be easy. But suddenly, in the very nick of time, the honest, patriotic democratic masses threw off their accustomed lethargy and took charge of the party organization.

The result is known. Superficial observers will say, of course, that the result is defeat. But it is something more, and that something more is just as important as a victory. In fact, it is a victory. It has stirred the democratic masses as they have never been stirred before. Though defeated at the polls, they are still full of hope and enthusiasm. They have a party organization of their own making, strong, compact, aggressive and purified of all those traitorous elements that would hitch the emocracy to undemocratic principles. The defeat the party has suffered is no greater, no more important, than that which befell it in 1888, when, un der the leadership of Grover Cleveland, it was supposed to be both popular and powerful.

The victory it has won is substantial and lasting. It has renewed its allegiance to genuine democratic principles, and is now prepared to propagate these immortal doctrines with hope and vigor. That they will be triumphant no man can doubt who knows the

It is strictly in keeping with the republican policy that has dominated the administration of Grover Cleveland that he should have waited until after Mc-Kinley's election to issue his thanksgiving proclamation.

The defeat of Mr. Breckinridge is one of those incidents that are likely to occur in any campaign.

The democratic guessers this year do not show much improvement over the republican guessers of 1892.

The Brooklyn Eagle declares that one of its editorial articles is responsible for the whole result. Mr. Hanna should lose no time in discovering the writer of the article and presenting him with what is left over from the campaign

It is be hoped that the financial institutions that contributed heavily to Mr. McKinley's election will lose no time in giving the country "an object lesson" in the way of prosperity.

The sooner Mr. Hanna goes around and opens the mills to labor, the better it will be for everybody.

It is queer, but the New York banks are doing for McKinley what they wouldn't do for Cleveland. They are piling up gold in the treasury in readiness for the republican president to take The first exhibition of "restored con-

One of the results of the recent presidential election has been a revival in campaign statistics. Says The Chicago Record in speaking of the narrow margins on which decisive results have frequently "Van Buren was elected over the whig candidates in 1836 by a majority of only 2,628 popular votes. General Harrison was elected in 1840 over Van Buren by a majority of 145,900 popular votes out of 2,400,000, yet he received 234 electoral votes to Van Buren's 60. Polk defeated Henry Clay in 1844 by only 67 270 popular votes in a detail. 1844 by only 97,870 popular votes in a total vote of over 2,500,000. Garfield in 1880 received only 7,028 more popular votes than Hancock, out of over 9,000,000. Cleveland in 1884 received only 2,005 more popular votes than Blaine, out of over 9,500, Harrison in 1888 only 96,658 more popular votes than Cleveland, out of nearly 11,000.000. In the presidential election of 1892 eighteen states were carried by pluralities f less than 10,000 votes. They were: South Of less than 10,000 votes. The elephant is noted for his awkwardness and yet he is capable of performing some of the most difficult feats of climb-ing. Says The Philadelphia Inquirer:

Elephants are able to make their way up and down the mountains and through a country of steep cliffs, where mules would not dare to venture, and even where men find passage difficult. Their tracks have been found upon the very summits of nountains over 7,000 feet high. In thes journeys an elephant is often compelled to descend hills and mountain sides which are almost precipitous. This is the way it is done: The elephant's first maneuver is to kneel down close to the declivity. One foreleg is then cautiously passed over the edge and a short way down the slope, and if he lnds there is no good spot for a firm foot hold be speedily forms one by stamping into the soil, if it is moist, or kicking out a footing if it is dry. When he is sure of good foothold the other foreleg is brought lown in the same way. Then he per the same work over again with his oringing both forelegs a little in advance for the first foothold. This leaves good places already made for the hind feet. Now bracing himself up by his huge, strong orelegs, he draws his hind legs, first one and then the other, carefully over the edge, where they occupy the first places made by the forefeet. This is the way the animal proceeds all the way zigzag, kneeling with his forefeet. Thus the center of gravity is preserved and the huge beast i beast prevented from toppling over

"If the report is true that Japan is aiding the Philippine rebels by landing arms on the coast," says The Brooklyn Citizen, there will be serious complications beween Spain and Japan in the near future The Japs are anxious for territorial ex-tensions and would be only too glad to annex the Philippines. It would not be at all strange if arms were sent to the islands by sympathizers with the revolt, nuch as arms are sent from this country o Cuba, but that Japan will openly aid the rebels is very improbable. But if Spain should by any chance be driven out, Japan would doubtless be very ready ery vigorously protest against all fillbustering is certain. A remarkable instance of the effects of the long drought is found in the fact that at the recent term of Emanuel superior court water sold at 5 cents a drink, and at 15 cents a gallon for watering stock. IS DANCING ON THE WANE? Society in England and America Seems as well go to dinner.

From The Boston Herald.
The latest agitation in English society throughout her majesty's empire has been caused by the sad truth that dancing is going out of fashion. It may be said that the terpischorean art is dying a natural death, and in its last throes now calls upon the world to know the reason of its decay. What means this passing away of a cus tom as old as the ark? What has struck mankind that this symptom of light-heartedness and exuberance of spirits surcum to the influence of some unseen enemy is it possible that we are passing through Is it possible that we are passing through a vale not of tears, perhaps, but one of moral paralysis, when even the playful skipping of young lambs is distasteful to the senses? At all events, the youthful Britisher who has been a devotee of the ballroom, and who has danced with all the abandon of a salome or a Miriam, suddenly finds herself partnerless, and the Tommy Atkins of society turning up his Tommy Atkins of society turning up his nose at her antics.

The passing of the dance is by an observing press to be one of the most singular changes in the present age, and to seek the cause of it is the object of the guardians of modern thought and morals. For, of course, there is a reason for every variation in the social system. While deploring the new order of things, and seeking to discover the influences which have been working against the once universal pastime, it is well to remember that the encouragement that has been given to out of door sports and the excessive use of the bicycle may have much to answer for in an age that cannot claim to be eclectic in its tastes.

It matters very little if the mere act of dancing falls into desuetude, but it matters a great deal if the graceful exercises which precede and accompany the art are no longer practiced. A gawky, shambling gait and the shy, self-consciousness of many young people have been corrected and amended by dancing, when violent calisthenics and school drilling have failed to bring about the easy hearing always associated with good manners. Formerly "deportment" was a branch of education, but this era of haste and rudeness no longer recognizes its helpful adjunct, but is content to square its shoulders, to poke dancing falls into desuctude, but it matters content to square its shoulders, to poke out or in its elbows, and to nod its head in the brusque, angular style that suits the hustling times.

No special benefit is derived from this loss of the gentle art. The beautiful world goes on precisely the same, and only man s viler in contrast. He says in his own defense that the time ourse given to the cultivation of fine manners is now con-sumed by sending round the wheels of his bike and acquiring the twentieth cen-tury hump. His dancing days literally are over. If he condescends to walk through a square dance or to jump about in a waltz it is simply because his partner is too rich or too lovely to be neglepted.

He would not be guilty of exhibiting any courtliness on either occasion, for a courtly manner is "beastly form," but, as he is naturally civil, he will discourse knowingly on the fascinations of golf, the strategy of polo, the dangers of a scorch on his wheel, the company he met at some house party, or a rapid cruise on a friend's yacht.

is alarmed by the "deportment," what can be said about our state of mind on the subject in a country as free as this. Lan-guage fails to paint the situation, and even Mr. Van Alen's imported ballroom at Newport, affords no solace for the future. Verily, it is other times, other manners.

ROBERTSON'S SPEECH TO LEGISLATORS

Candidate from Habersham Addresses the Legislature.

MAKES AN EARNEST AVOWAL

Tells Legislators What Should Be the Duty of Democrats.

THE DANGER IN ANOTHER ELECTION

Colonel Robertson Takes This Up and Handles the Question with Gloves Off-What He Has To Say on the Political Situation.

I tell you that when Georgia loses her independent prestige then we must look for trouble. Our people are tired of political strife. They wish rest from political excitement. Another state campaign may result in disaster to the party. That is for you in your wisdom to determine.

I wish to say to you in all seriousness and in all truth that if a candidacy on my part will, in your judgment, produce dissension in the party's rank, or burden the people with unnecessary expense, then, no matter how warm your personal friendship may be for me, do not hesitate for one moment to condemn me by your action, and let that action be dominated by your love of the party and not that of the man.

These were the ringing words from Colonel J. W. Robertson in his address before the general assembly last night. He spoke them with intense fervor and they produced electric effect. He was in earnest and the people who heard him were in earnest, The above sentiment from the lips of the candidate from Habersham brought out the wildest applause

In accordance with the resolution passed the house the representatives gathered last night at 8 o'clock for the purpose of hearing the speech from Colonel Robertson. Before the hour all the seats on the floo were filled and an immense audience crowded the galleries. Many ladies were present and listened with intense interest. Colonel Robertson was in splendid trim.

His speech was short, but one of the most forceful and earnest heard in the hall of representatives for a long time.

Senator Redwine, of the thirty-third district, introduced Colonel Robertson in a speech referring to the record of the colonel and stating what he had done for the dem ocratic party.

Duties of a Citizen. As Colonel Robertson stepped forward he was greeted with a storm of applause.

"Gentlemen of the General Assembly and Fellow Citizens-For a private citizen, one without the prestige of any political honor, to be invited to address the members of the general assembly of Georgia on the political ues of the day is rather unusual and out of the line of the ordinary. Your invitation is considered by me a very high honor and shall say to you on this occasion will be said in truth and soberness; the opinions expressed will be based on my honest con victions and as far from selfish motives and narrow prejudices as the frailty of human nature will permit.

"Mr friends, good citizenship in this great republic of ours demands more than the law requires. The legal requirements of citizenship are few and simple-to pay taxes, work on the roads, serve upon the juries and stand ready at all times to be called out to serve either in posse comitatus which I am sorry to say has gone out of fashion, or the militia, is about all. But there is resting on the citizen of the republic a higher duty, embraced not in law, but in patriotism. That duty is that a citizen should take an interest in every and all political questions and economic problems which affect the interests of the coun-

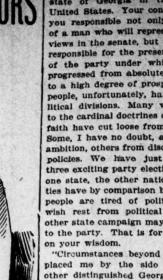

"When in 1865 I, like thousands of others. returned to Georgia and found her homes devastated and her wealth dissipated and her political condition changed from the condition of a sovereign state to that of a province, I made up my mind that as a good citizen it was a duty due my native state to couple with my labors for existence an effort to advance the upbuilding of Georgia's material prosperity, and also her political integrity, and since 1865 my occupation has been always connected with the resources of Georgia and the south, and my political affiliation has been with that great party, the democratic party, which guaranteed to my state good

"When those three great Georgians, Hill, Toombs and Cobb, sounded in the sixties the call to political duty, I heard and obeyed, and it is with pride I can say that for more than a generation I have served in the ranks of the democratic party without pay or the hope of reward, and have earn ed. by faithful service, the honorable title of high private among the veterans of the

"My friends, there never was and never can be but two great political parties in this country. One always has and ever will present a government of the people by class for the benefit of a class, and the other a government of the people, by the people, for the people. Those are the foundation principles upon which the two great parties rest, and stand today just where they stood in the days of Hamilton and Jefferson. Policies have been often changed according to conditions, but the foundation principles of today can never be changed.

"I am glad to talk to you on the politica issues of the day. There is but one-and only one-to which the people have for the past three years given thought, and ir which they have taken deep interest, and that is the financial question. It is true this issue could be divided and subdivided, but the two great parties appealed to the people of this country on last Tuesday with the issue clearly defined, and the people have rendered the decision."

The Financial Question. Colonel Robertson then took up the finanial question, and went on to show that iblican party was pledged to international bimetallism. He called attention to the fact that the platform of the party demanded that the currency of the country should be based upon the international

This and other features of the republicar platform were referred to by the speaker. He stated that the people would hold the party in power responsible for carrying out all principles advocated by it.

agreement plan.

"I give them notice," he said, "that if do not bring relief, in 1900 we will rise up and assert the rights that belong to all true Americans. (Applause.) "We charge," he said, "that the people need relief. Now, what relief do the republicans propose? To increase your taxes by increasing the duty on imports." Colonel Robertson then went on to show the political independence of the United States, and brought forward statistics to show that the country was not dependent upon England for its prosperity.

It was his opinion that lack of wise congressional legislation, under-consumption and not over-production, was the cause of the present situation. In referring to the continuation of the bond issue by the republicans, Colonel Robertson said: "Reaching into the womb of the future, they would chain the energies of unborn generations." (Great applause.)

The speaker discussed thoroughly the financial situation and the tariff question relative to the present situation.

"If the money power is not controlled and shall influence that solution in utter disregard of the masses, then, I say to that power, heed the great Webster's warning, uttered years ago, when he said: 'There is power on earth greater than arbitrary or despotic power. The lightning has its power, and the earthquake has its power, but there is that among men more capable of shaking arbitrary or despotic power than the lightning or whirlwind, or earthquake; it is the aroused indignation of an outraged

"My friends, it has been charged against me by some with favoring what is called 'McKinley protection,' that is high duties on imports. I am an old-fashioned democrat, I stand with and by my party on the tariff. know its doctrines and its traditions. Tariff for revenue has been the slogan since my recollection. With any tariff duties, protection to a certain extent must follow, provided a customs duty is levied on gustus Billings, which is very prettily and any article which can be produced in thi country. The highest possible duties or luxuries and the lowest possible duties on necessities of life is democratic doctrine Holding to this doctrine, I did not hesitate to criticise what is known as the Wilson tariff bill as it came from the house, and called the attention of our senators, Gordon and the lamented Colquitt, to the fact that the Wilson bill was not a democratic bill, if measured by democratic doctrine, since it reduced the duties on luxuries as well as duties on necessities. And I mention it, to show the fact that it required 625 amendments to get that celebrated bill through the senate. No customs duties should be so levied as to build up one class at the expense of another class, and under no conditions should such duties be laid as will discriminate against the producer of wealth in favor of the manufacturer, for on the prosperity of the producer depends the prosperity of the whole country. He

"So long as present extravagant appropriations continue to be made by congress, over five hundred millions a session, duties must be levied or direct taxes resorted to, provided we cannot so amend the constitution as to give us an income tax. Direct taxation has never been approved by our party for direct tax is a tax on the head and not a tax on the pocket, and I stand by the people and declare for tax on wealth.'

who saves the producer saves himself,

A Warm Conclusion. Colonel Robertson's conclusion stirred the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. He said:

"If God in His providence should remove tonight every candidate for the senate, Georgia would have left, I thank God, a thousand others worthy to hold the posi-

Our people, unfortunately, have had serious political divisions. Many who hold with us to the cardinal doctrines of pure democratic faith have cut loose from party allegiance. Some, I have no doubt, actuated by selfish ambition, others from discontent with party policies. We have just passed through three exciting party electionsone state, the other national. Our majorities have by comparison been reduced. Our people are tired of political strife. They rish rest from political excitement. Another state campaign may result in disaster to the party. "A Bowery Girl."

"A Bowery Girl" was seen at the Grand last night by a large audience. The play went well, being frequently encored throughout. There were many thrilling incidents and any number of exciting leaus. The play depicts life on the Bowery in New York and the scenery of this sec-tion of the great metropolis was very realistic. In connection with the exciting par of the play there is opportunity for the many good specialties that were intro-

Florrie West, the charming little sou-brette, is at the head of the company and is good in the part of Nora Hallinan, a leader in Bowery society. She sings several catchy songs and made quite a hit. Carrie Ezier is one of the characters of the Bowery and she does a nice song and dance which went well.

Those who like to see a good melodrams can find it in "The Bowery Girl." It has all those exciting incidents which make this sort of performance a success.

The same play will be presented at the matinee this afternoon and tonight.

Lyceum Matines Today. This afternoon at 3 o'clock the Baldwin-Melville comedy company will present a most excellent comedy-drama entitled "The Golden Giant Mine." This is one of the pest plays in the repertoire of the company. Tonight the engagement of this company closes at the Lyceum and at this performance $25 in gold will be given away.

"Too Much Johnson." William Gillette's greatest success omedy, "Too Much Johnson," will be preented two nights and Wednesday matinee, eginning Tuesday night, November 10th. Lewis Morrison Coming.

As a man Lewis Morrison is quiet and almost retiring, modest in his dress and thoroughly domestic in his babits. His first thought is his home and how to make perfect and complete, his aim being to have it an ideal one in every respect. How different is Lewis Morrison as a devil! Here he is insinuating, cunning, crafty and enticing. The story of "Faust" is always one of interest, but to make it doubly acceptable in its dramatic version it must be well told and herein lies the strength of Mr. Morrison's production, for he gives it beautiful and elaborate stage settings and surrounds himself with carefully chosen players and when it is seen in this city ne scenery in both design and material will be displayed together with entirely new costumes throughout. Mr. Morrison comes to the Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday.

"A Milk White Flag." A real treat is in store for amusemen lovers and theatergoers in general next week at the Lyceum when Hoyt's latest and greatest work, "A Milk White Flag." will be presented. The engagament be gins Friday for two nights. "A Milk White Flag" is announced as the most pretentious

The piece is in three scenes and all the scenery used in the production was brought from Hoyt's Madison Square theater, New York, and was designed and painted by that celebrated artist, Mr. Arthur Voegalin. The music was composed by Mr. Richard Stahl and is tuneful and catchy.

The Georgia Minstrels.

One thing that will surprise the visitor to the minstrels at the Columbia theater next Thursday evening will be the entire ab sence of all the objectionable features, such as white face, spectacular and circus adjuncts, which have been injected into mir strel programmes. This company gives roduction of old-time minstrelsy, with features up to date.

The second part or finale is exceedingly interesting. The "crap game" causes a continual round of laughter; the juggling of Jalvin is excellent, while Billy Kersands keeps the house in an uproar with his original negro songs and sayings.

The company will play at popular prices.

Mrs. Bartow's Lecture. Mrs. Florence Bartow, daughter of Dr. Crawford Long, will deliver an interesting ecture next week on Mormonism. The lecture is given under the auspices of the Woman's club. The lecture is highly spoken of by those who have heard it.

for the Oceasion.

EXCURSIONS ARE TO BE RUN

People from All Parts of the State Will Be Here—Invitations To Be Issued. The chiefs of the police, fire and sanitary departments of the city of Atlanta are making great preparations for the firs annual parade and review of the city departments, which takes place on the 19th The parade will be the first of the kind ever had in this city, and the members of all the departments are taking an unusual amount of interest in the affair.

Realizing that the occasion will be one of general interest to the people through-out the state, the rallroads running into Atlanta have made provisions whereby the citizens of other cities will be able to come to Atlanta and witness the grand

Chief Joyner, of the fire department, and Chief Connally, of the police department, spoke to Commissioner Joseph Richardson, of the Southern States Passenger Association in regard to the matter and he at once arranged so that excursions would be run from all parts of the state, arriving Atlanta on the 18th, and not later than noon on the 19th, and leaving not later than the night of the 20th.

A special rate will in all probability be made so that all persons will be enabled to come to Atlanta and see the first annual parade of its excellently disciplined depart-

The time of arrival and departure of the excursions will allow all desiring to con to get to the city in time to spend a day or more here and get back home with the loss of very little time.

The fact that excursions will be run and the railroad fare made cheaper will bring to Atlanta a larger crowd than would have come had the special arrangements no been made. People throughout the state have never seen the three important de-partments in parade and it will be a great drawing card, bringing to the city one of the largest crowds that has been here in

Invitations Have Been Issued. Neat and appropriate invitations to the parade and review have been arranged by the chiefs of the three departments, and they, together with the mayor of the city, will send them to the heads of departments in other cities of Georgia and neighboring

The invitations are an artistic piece of work and read as follows:
"The pleasure of your company is requested at the first annual parade and review of the police, fire and sanitary departments of the city of Atlanta, Ga., on Thursday, November 19, 1896, at 3 o'clock On the inside page of the invitation is a programme of the day, which tells when the parade will start and what the course of its march will be. The Fifth Georgia regiment band has been secured for the day and it will lead the proade, playing patriotic airs as the ers of the three departments march keeping time to the music, Programme of the Day.

The parade will line up at the corner of Walton and Peachtree streets at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon, and at 3 o'clock will move in the direction of the stand at the site of the old artesian well, on which will be seated the mayor and general council and a large number of prominent citizens and

The line will form up with the mounted police in the lead and the foot police folowing. Behind the police department will come the sanitary department, about twenty strong. Behind the sanitary department will come the Atlanta fire fighters on foot little red wagon, and behind them will come every apparatus in the department. PAPERS FILED YESTERDAY

While Employed by the Railroad Company an Accident Occurred, Which Mangled Him.

A suit for $10,000 has been filed by J. U. Penley against the receiver of the Chat-Southern Railway Company in the shape of an intervention. The papers were yesterday filed in the office of the clerk of the United States court.

Penley alleges that he was injured to the extent of $10,000 while in the employ of the rallroad, working at Harrisburg, Ga. The papers filed yesterday set forth in detail how the injury was inflicted and endeavored to show that the petitioner was in no way responsible for the accident, which resulted in laming and maiming him for Penley was a railroad workman at the time of the accident. He, in company with several other workmen, was employed under the direction of a foreman to move a hand car from a platform to the track wher The complainant alleges that the foreman ordered one end of the car turned to-ward the track and moved several feet in that direction in spite of the fact that he was warned that there was great danger of a fall from the platform if such a movement of the car was made.

Without notice to the complainant, it is claimed, the foreman jerked the car in such a way as to throw Penley violently from the platform, causing a sprained, dislocated and fractured foot and ankle. The foot, it is chaimed, was crushed until it hay flat up against the leg and was terribly mangled.

Penley alleges that he was put to great expense for doctors' bills, was unable to walk without a crutch for five months, and now is obliged to limp awkwardly and painfully. He says that he suffered great pain and was so incapacitated for work that he will never again be able to do more than one-fourth of the work he could do and had been doing before the accident The injury, he declares, is a permanent one and caused him great mortification account of his physical disfigurement. Arguing on the ground that he is but thirty-five years of age and expects to live thirty years or more, and at the time of his injury was making $1.50 a, day, he insists that he has been damaged to the Judge Newman referred the case to Special Master W. P. Hills, who will hear

WOMAN KILLED IN A STEAM GIN

Mrs. Ed Swilling Caught in a Revolving Belt and Whirled To Death.

Hartwell, Ga. November 6.—(Special.)—
Mrs. E. Swilling was killed this morning at Captain J. W. Smith's steam gin, eight miles below Hartwell.
Mrs. Swilling attempted to step ever a counter shaft that was revolving rapidly on a line about eight inches above the ind, when her dress was caught by et screw. She was hurled around the shaft everal times before the machinery could he stopped. Both legs were broken, and in fact, every bone in her body seemed broken or badly jerked out of joint. Mrs. Swilling lived only a few hours.

BONDHOLDERS WANT INTEREST. Baltimore Safe Deposit and Trust Company Sues Anniston.

Anniston, Ala., November 6.-(Special.)-The Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore, acting for the holders of the city bonds of Anniston and holding $285,000 of such bonds through its Attorney J. J. Willett, of this city, has instituted several suits in the United States circuit court at Birmingham to collect the unpaid interes This promises to be an interesting and mportant litigation.

The city of Anniston will contend that ithout attempting repudiation it is unable to pay such interest and run the city on account of the city taxation being limited to 50 cents on the $100. The court will then be called upon to decide what are the ne nses of the city. This case will be watched with much interest by the legal profession as well as by several other citie in the state which have also defaulted on their bonded indebtedness. The case will be tried in March in Birmingham.

Attempt To Increase Capital Million Pounds Produces Warm Discus-

London, November 6 .- An excited and extremely uproarious meeting of the directors and shareholders of the British South Africa Company was held in London this afternoon, the duke of Abercorn presiding. The duke of Fife, Lord Gifford and Sin Horace Farquhar were among those in at-

The shareholders rejected a scheme for mulated by the directors for an underwriting of new shares and the result of the vote caused great excitement.

The duke of Abercorn was cheered as he arose to address the meeting from the chair. The outbreak of the natives in Rhodesia, he said, had been unforeseen and had cost heavily, exhausting the fund of £500,000 in cash which the British South Africa Company had on hand last February. The outbreak had been quelled, however: the rinderpest, which had worked great havoc in the company's territory, was abating and the general outlook had encouraged the directors to bring forward the proposed increase of the company's capital by £1,000,000 in shares of £1 each. The duke said he could not discuss the Jameson raid or the resignations of Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Belt from the directory of the company until after a parliamentary committee had made an inquiry into the vents which had occurred in south Africa affecting the company.

The motion to increase the capital of the company was seconded by the duke of Shareholder De Pass protested against the proposed increase, but the duke of Abercorn, nevertheless, declared, amid great confusion, that the increase had been carried. The duke then moved that the meeting approve the arrangements which had been made by the directors to underwrite £300,000 of these new shares.

The motion was received with shouts of dissent and Mr. De Pass moved that the neeting give a direct negative to the inderwriting proposal. Mr. de Pass's motion was carried by a large majority. When the motion offered by the duke of Abercorn was lost the duke said: Then I rely upon you to take up the

PROFIT-SHARING PLAN.

Illinois Central Offers Stock To Employes on Installment Plan. Illinois Central has inaugurated plan for profit sharing by its employes Mention of this has been made in The Constitution but the details have not hitherto been published. plan, on the first day of each nonth, the company will quote to ployes through heads of departments, a price at which their applications will be accepted for shares of stock for that month. An employe is ofof $5 or multiples of $5. up the full amount of a share, he will get wishes, begin the purchase of another share on the installment plan. The certificate of stock is transferable on the company's books, and entitles the owner to such dividends as may be declared by the board of directors, if any, and he may vote in elections like any other stockholder An officer or employe will be entitled to receive 4 per cent per annum on his money during the time he is paying for his stock, provided he does not allow twelve consecu-tive months to elapse without making any payments, at the expiration of which period interest will cease to accrue, and the sum to his credit will be returned to him on his application therefor. money returned to him with accrued interest, by making application to the head of the department in which he is employed. An employe who has made application for a share of stock on the installment plan is expected to make the first payment from the first wages which may be due him. In case an employe leaves the service of the company, he must either pay up in full for the share for which he has subscribed and receive a certificate therefor, or take his money with the interest which has accrued. This does not preclude the purchase of shares of stock, for an em-ploye who has not already an outstanding application for a share of stock on the installment plan which is not full paid for, can, in any month, make application for a share of stock for cash at the price quoted to employes for that month, and he can in the same month, if he so desires, make application for another share on the ent plan.

It will be interesting to watch and see how this plan works out. In a well man-aged road the co-operative scheme would e all right, but in most roads in this day and generation the small stockholder has a poor investment.

WHO COMMANDS FRENCH ARMY? The Minister of War Is at the Head of Military Affairs.

According to the regulations the ministe of war is commander in chief of the French army. But an act passed in 1888 provides that this high dignitary must remain in Paris if a war breaks out. The actual com mand will be assumed by a major general designated for that purpose by the ministry-at present General Saussier. Well An officer or employe making payments on the foregoing plan and for any reason desiring to discontinue them, can have his time of peace. He receives the command time of peace. He receives the command over the different corps from another man, from whom, perhaps, he differs materially in opinion. The responsibility for the state of the army is thus divided and cannot be fastened upon any one person. Further, the highest rank in the French army is that of division general. There are some higher functions, such as the command of an army corps and the army inspection, but these functions are attended to by the division generals, who stand in the same rank with their inferiors in command. In time of peace this causes unpleasant jealousy; during war time it may lead to conflicts and disorder. With regard to the commanders e it may lead to conflicts and of army corps the matter is not so bad, as they are in touch with the troops and leaders under their command. But how is a general to command an army if the chiefs of four or five army corps and some twenty divisions all hold the same rank as him-self? Will he be obeyed?

The impropriety of this state of things is well known to the French, but the conditions of the republic exclude the possibility of suitable reforms. It any general were given an extra feather for his hat or an ex-tra star on the collar of his coat he might use his new authority against the republic. On the other hand, the hundred or so of division generals hold each other in check. Yet the responsible heads of the army fear that serious difficulties will arise in case of war, and the present minister of war or war, and the present minister of war has drawn up a bill for the mitigation of the evit. He suggests the appointment of a responsible council of war, and the creation of a new rank, that of "army general." Twenty-five of the division generals are to be raised to it, and they must be chosen from the officers who already act as army commanders and army inspec-

It is, however, doubtful that even this derate reform will be allowed to pass the chambers. Already the radicals and socialists raise a row and declare that Billot is preparing for a coup d'etat. On the other hand, the military press points out that it would be much better to give the future commanders of armies a higher distanchic position and to enable them to exercise some power over the troops they are to lead in time of war. But the military authorities understand that, if twenty-five commanders are raised to a higher rank, the present difficulty in the appointrank, the present amounty in the appoint-ment of chiefs is, at least, narrowed down. More radical reforms would be likely to meet with still greater opposition than the proposition which General Billot has formu-lated with the assistance of his civilian ministers.

Captain Hatfield and His Fourteen-Year

Old Son Placed in Jail.

WANTED FOR TRIPLE MURDER

"I Killed Elliott Rutherford and Hanse Chambers," Says the Boy.

THIRTY KILLINGS CHARGED TO THE FATHER

Capture Was Made in the West Virginia Mountains-Two Were in a Rock Fort, Heavily Armed. Huntington, W. Va., November 6 .- (Special.)-Captain Hatfield, the most notorious outlaw in the West Virginia mountains, has been captured. J. H. Clark, the detecive and deputy sheriff of the Norfolk and Western railway, with Dan Christian, arrived here at daybreak with Hatfield and his fourteen-year-old son. They were captured in the mountains of

Mingo county at dusk last night. After wo days and nights of tireless trailing and econnoitering, the Hatfields were located in a natural rock fort in the mountains which was used by their faction as a place of refuge during their trouble with the acCoys, of Kentucky, six years ago. Hatfield and his son are charged with the murder of John Rutherford, Elliott

Rutherford and Hanse Chambers, in an election quarrel at Matewan, W.Va. Father and son seemed not the least worried over the affair.

The fourteen-year-old lad smiled and "I killed Elliott Rutherford and Hans Chambers; dad killed John Rutherford." Captain Hatfield for years led the famous oand of Hatfields against the McCoys. The fame of that feud spread over the whole country. Hatfield is charged with killing thirty-seven men in the past twenty years Hatfield and his son were asleep in a crevice of a large rock cliff on Tug river when the officers discovered them. Hatfield had two winchesters and two revolvers while the boy was sleeping with a winchester lying on each side of him. Thousands of persons are surrounding the jail here attempting to get a peep at the outlaws. They were brought here fo fear of mob violence.

The capture is regarded as a remarkable one, for the whole Hatfield faction wa reported to have been ready to arise to the defense of their old-time leader at a mo-

New York, November 6.-The stock marned considerably today, and there ras a good demand for securities through-ut the session at the stock exchange. The ing was active and strong, the reports rent yesterday about a war with Spain r Cuban matters and rumors of the tion of Bryan electors in Indiana and ntucky failing to materialize, These mors demoralized the market at the se yesterday. In addition to the denial the sensational stories referred to there me encouraging advices from Europe as the standing of foreign investors in re-rd to American securities; an increased sposition on the part of the capitalists employ their funds; the opening of mills factories throughout the country; the amption of dividends by the Chicago Company and statements that the sound money men will control the United States senate. Business was on an enor-mous scale, the sales of stocks aggregating 489,157 shares and railway and miscella-neous bonds $3,963,000. The improvement in the usually active list ranged from ½ to 4 cent. General Electric rose 3, Burlington and Quincy 2%, Chicago Gas 2½, St. Paul 2¼, Rock Island 2¾, Manhattan 2¼, Louisville and Nashville 2½, Reading 15%. rennessee Coal 2%, Leather preferred 2, Rubber 2, Rubber preferred 3½, Northwest ½ and Western Union 7%. Sugar was feish. It opened at 1181/2@121, dropped to 34 and rallied to 119%. The manipulation harp rise in wheat encouranged further aying of stocks, and near the close spec-blation was strong with prices at or near the top of the day. In the inactive issues son General Electric rose 4% to 99%, ois Steel 7½ to 54, New York and New Haven 8 to 180, and Tobacco preferred 9 to 105. Sugar was the most active stock, figuring for 68,400 shares. Early Morning Gossip.

New York, November 6.—(Over the Paine-Murphy Co.'s Private Wire.)—There were rumors yesterday of a dividend in the near future on United States Leather preferred. The directors meet the latter part of this month, and if there is to be a dividend it will be declared then. Insiders yesterday had nothing to say in regard to the rumor beyond admitting that the financial position of the leather company had improved. The company was declared to have quite a large stock of hides which cost 40 per cent less than prevailing prices. Its sales of leather had lately been at a influx of out of town orders yesterday morning in excess of anything for several years, while queries by mail and telegraph for advice, as to what to purchase were yery numerous. The orders came from street, and from people who are satisfied with small amounts of stock. Houses thought this buying would increase, particularly on reactions, and that it would prevent anything like a break in prices. There was a steady selling in Sugar from

Iron, Atchison preferred, Kansas and Tex-as preferred, Missouri Pacific and Pacific Mail were not very far apart in price. The earning applicable to dividends on most of these stocks are admittedly remote. Pacific Mail is earning from 2 to 4 per cent on its stock, and has something over a million dollars applicable to dividends, Nevertheless, practically every stock in its class has outstripped it in price; and what is more, it is regularly one of the last stocks to advance and one of the first to decline. People who watch the trading say inside interests buy when it is weak but make great haste to sell them the mo-ment it gets strong. The operating cost of Pacific Mail has been over 88 per cent for Paine-Murphy Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Atlanta, November 6.—Prices declined slightly at the opening today in sympathy with a lower market in Liverpool, but the loss was subsequently recovered and an advance of 4 to 8 points followed. The receipts at the interior towns gave early indications of showing a decided falling off. Frosts were reported at Cairo, Memphis, Montgomery, Vicksburg and Atlanta, and covering of shorts also contributed to the firmness. Before the close prices reacted slightly on selling, mainly for professional account, and closed steady at a net advance of 2 to 3 points, with sales of 174,400 bales. Some contend that the falling off in the interior movement is due to rains at the south during the week, but others contend that if points to a beginning of the end of the heavy movement. The quantity in sight this week is 384,000, against 378,000 last week. 227,000 last year, 541,000 in 1894 and 32,000 in 1893. New Orleans advanced 5 points on December, but when the quantity in sight was posted declined, closing at unchanged quotations. Liverpool declined 1-16d, on spot with sales of 12,000 bales. Futures there declined 3 to 3½ points, but recovered part of the loss, closing steady at a net advance of 2 to 2½ points. The Liverpool sales for the week were 85,000, against 435,000 and 912,000. Spots in New York were unchanged with sales of 60 bales for spin-Paine-Murphy Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, November 6.—The weight of the movement and the decline in our market yesterday falled to cause the expected decline abroad, and although the Liverpool market was lower, it did not show the anticipated weakness. Our market is slowly recovering from the avalanche of cotton thrown upon it during the past three days for European, and southern account, but with a crop less than the actual consumption last season we look for higher prices. Throughout the southwest the cold wave is rapidly destroying the prospects of a top crop following a rainy week, and if the temperature falls further tonight, as predicted, the top crop theory must be abandoned. Above all, it is now apparent that this country is entering a period of prosperity with the smallest stocks of merchandise for years. What the result of these conditions will be our friends can judge. The market during the afternoon showed a slight recession from the best prices of the day, but closed steady with an increasing seller in the future course of prices.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, November 6.—Spot cotton here was unchanged. Liverpool declined 1-16d on the spot with sales of 12,600 bales. Futures there declined 3 to 3½ points, but recovered part, closing steady at a net decline of 2 to 2½ points. The Liverpool sales for the week werd 85,000 bales, including 70,000 American. The exports approximated 70,000 bales. New Orleans declined 2 points, but recovered the loss and advanced 4 points. Futures here opened 2 to 3 points lower, recovered the loss and advanced 4 to 8 points, but reacted, closing quiet and steady at a net advance of 2 to 3 points for the day with sales of 174,000 bales.

After opening lower, in sympathy with a decline in Liverpool, prices rallied and advanced. The interior movement for the week showed a material diminution, and though many contended that the falling off in the receipts was due to the heavy rains in the south during the week, some nervous shorts covered, putting up prices. Reports gomery and light frost at Vicksburg and Atlanta also induced some buying. The southern spot markets were generally firm with a fair business doing. The quantity to come in sight for the week was estimated at 370,000 to 375,000. Before the close part of the improvement was lost on realizing sales. The trading was quiet and in the main of a local character. Silver was higher here and in London.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, November 6.—(Special.)—The market today closed quiet and steady at an improvement of a few points as compared with yesterday's closing. Liverpool opened at a sharp decline in consequence, it is said, of cables from New Orleans claiming that the crop will exceed 9,000,000 bales. It may be noted that some heavy wagers have been offered here on behalf of New Orleans parties that the crop will be over 9,100,000 bales. The heavy receipts, together with these offers, have somewhat shaken the faith of the bulls in a small crop, but the interior receipts today rather disappointed the bears and January, which had opened upon the depressing Liverpool advice at 7.92, rallied to 8,03 and reacted on realizing sales, closing at 7.9807.99. It is the simple truth that nobody here knows whether the market will go up or go down, but it would be very easy for anybody to tell who could foresee how the receipts will run. Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, November 6.--In the dry goods market the spot demand shows some increase in the volume of business. There is manifestly more interest taken in the general situation both as regards staple cotton goods and spring specialties. The tone throughout may be reported good. In the woolen goods division also a better business is looked for with a generally firm market.

Dun & Co.'s Review.

New York, November 6.—R. G. Dun & Co. will say tomorrow in their weekly review of trade:

"A great revolution has been effected this week in the conditions which control business. It could not be in any fair degree reflected as yet in transactions or in records, but there is ample evidence aircady that a crushing weight has been lifted and rolled away, and the business world has begun to adjust itself to a state of freedom and security which it has not known for years. Dread of immeasurable disaster no longer locks up resources, and paralyzes enterprise, and new contracts involving many millions have become binding since the election.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

The Temper in Wheat Was Bullish, the Close Being 4c Higher.

Many Orders Contingent on McKin-

New York, November 6.—Bradstreet's to-morrow will say: The expected has hap-bened in the success of the fight for "sound money." One result is a return of confi-dence in the stability of values and in an early revival of demand for staples. Lower rates of interest and a willingness on the part of the banks to make loans which had previously been declined are additional early revival of demand for staples. Deverates of interest and a willingness on the part of the banks to make loans which had previously been declined are additional evidence of the meaning of the maintenance of the gold standard.

Business was practically suspended throughout the country early this week and there has been little increase in the volume since the election, compared with like periods in preceding weeks. But manufacturers and jobbers are more inclined to purchase in advance instead of for nearby wants only, and in a few lines, notably wool, cotton, iron and steel, a large volume of purchases is reported.

That merchants generally share the confidence in an early revival is indicated by hardening staple prices and the increases in quotations in addition to those given in preceding weeks. Sales of cotton goods have been freer and some mills are betterensloyed. Woolen mills also report more corders and a tendency to prefer higher cost goods. Numerous industrial concerns which have started up within two days report being offered large orders if they would sell for 1897 delivery at present prices. Millions of dollars' worth of orders for general merchandise given contingent on the success of "sound money" are now being filled. Owing to the lateness of the senson few have regarded the outlook as promising much in the nature of a boom during the current year. At a few northwestern commercial centers large orders have met their obligations this autumn more promptly than for years past and southern merchanits and manufacturers are reported looking thead confidently to a marked improvement in business in the near future.

Eank clearings totals continue below the Miller Adlar mark $850,000,000 for the past cents higher with sales of considerable amounts in western markets. Lumber is firm, the tendency is upward and there is an advance for white pine. Renewed demand for cotton goods and placing orders with mills advance print cloths. Cotton, rosin and turpentine are higher, as is coffee, while wheat, under the stimulus of a strong statistical position, and, to an extent, the results of the election, reports another marked advance.

"The instant vanishing of the premium on gold, which thad reached about 2 per cent. the unlocking of many millions which had been hoarded, the collapse of the interest rate from 8 to 12 to 6 and 5½ per cent. and the quick demand for American securities on foreign account, are signs of more lasting promise. The lifting of the load of peril and of fear, all men know, means an inculcable relief for all industry and trade. "Speculation in cotton was excited on the theory that mills would now start up, as many have done, and would meet a large demand for goods. But the advance was met by realizing sales and a slight reaction. It will be all the better for business if bright hopes do not holst prices too fast. "The election has stiffened prices of pig iron, which reached $12 at Pittsburg for Bessemer, and the certainty that many large orders for buildings and bridges and other finished forms would now become operative justifies some advance. The future of this trade now depends upon the extent of increase in demand for finished products of iron and steel, which is likely to be materially affected by the course pursued by various combinations. The billet bool, which is still openiy undersold at Pittsburg and has caused no end of disturbance in business by favoring one class of producers to the detriment of another, has been in session here, and is said to have changed its basis of allotment so as to secure fairer results. The nail combination is now threatened with a hostile league of jobbers and producers, and is openly undersold. The bar combination, notwithstanding its large rehate, is still demanding more than the prices at which is the only change which yet appears in the market for cotton goods, and practically no change has yet appeared in woolens. "Fallures for the week have been 209 in the United States, against 20 last year, and 52 in Caneda, against 49 last year."

Paine-Murphy Co.'s Grain Letter. Atlanta, November 6.—The cause for the big advance in wheat today has been atmost entirely on the remarkable strength Attanta, November 5.—The cause for me big advance in wheat today has been almost entirely on the remarkable strength in the cash markets everywhere. Sample wheat has shown a big advance over yeterday with round lots hard to obtain. In Minneapolis the cash property is selling a a premium over the December price against a big discount a few days ago. The movement has suddenly fallen off everywhere, especially in Chicago and in the northwest. Yesterday the trade sold out and a great many went home short, believing that cables would be materially lower this morning, but on the other hand Liverpool opened firm at an advance of %d. This disappointment started shorts to cover, but of ferings were very light, and when the condition of the cash market became known there was a rush to buy from all sources. St. Louis led early, but later orders seemed to come from all directions, and the result was an advance of over 4c per bushel from yesterday's close. Toledo and St. Louis markets were both very firm, the former being about 13c over Chicago and the latter 6c, which is a very remarkable difference, and seems to be due to the urgent cash demand in those places. The trade seems momentarily to have lost sight of the foreign situation, and home conditions are taking a hand in making prices. A reliable authority in Toledo claims country millers are bidding like per bushel for No. 2 red over the Chicago December price. San Francisco continues to report a cargo demand for Australian acount, with four vessels loading yesterday for shipment. Clearanes were small at 175,000 bushels.

Coarse grains were strong and higher, in sympathy with wheat. There was liftle for sale. The trade was largely professional. Provisions declined on free selling of product by packers. There was a slight reaction before the close on the advance in grain, but the feeling does not seem to be strong.

Last night the ballroom of the Kimball was the scene of the first large cotilion of the season, and one that will be long remembered for its pleasure and brilliancy. The Nine O'clock Cotilion Club is really but a new name given to the reorganization of the oldest german club in the city, embracing an increased membership, consisting of the younger club men and present dancing set. Among the married men members of the club may be seen several of the charter members of the original Nine O'clock German Club, while among the charming young matrons acting as chaperons last night there were several who made their formal debuts and danced their first german at the "Nine O'clock" germans of some years ago.

DID HE MURDER HER? Negro Woman Dies Very Mysteriously Last Nitht.

HUSBAND HAD BEATEN HER

Her Husband Is Suspected of Having Murdered Her and Was Placed in a Cell.

A very mysterious death was reported to the police authorities last night. Lucindy Randall, a colored woman who lived in Logan's alley, near the corner of Piedmont avenue and Ellis street, died suddenly in the house of a neighbor after her drunken husband had been maltreating and beating her. An investigation of the case by Sergeant Ball resulted in the arrest of Charley Randall and he was locked in the station house suspected of murder. He denies that he killed his wife.

The circumstances in the case are very suspicious. Randall has been in the habit of coming home intoxicated, and his wife has had often to secrete herself in her neighbors' homes to escape his abuse. Last night was no exception to the rule. Randall came home about 6 o'clock drunk and begin abusing his wife. Two witnesses state she screamed for help and beseeched im not to kill her; that he had nearly done so already.

After what seemed to be a desperate struggle the woman succeeded in getting away from her husband and feebly groped her way through the dark to the home of Ellen Tichnor, only a short distance away.

After entering the house she fell across the foot of the bed, complaining of an intense pain in her side. On being asked if Randall had been beating her she seemed to evade the answer and replied in the negative. In a short while she fell over on the bed unconsious and soon expired.

As soon as the news was carried to Randall he was apparently grief-stricken. He moaned and cried and could be heard two blocks off. Finally he left under the pretense of going for a doctor and returned in about an hour without he. Sergeant Ball placed him under arrest a few minutes later and he was taken to the station house in a wagon.

Coroner Paden was notified and he will hold an inquest over the body this morn-ing. Howard, the colored undertaker, took charge of the remains last night. When seen at the station house Randall when seen at the station house randah had not sufficiently recovered from his spree to talk intelligently. He acknowledged that he had come home drunk, but denied he had beaten his wife. There are no bruises on the body which would indicate hard blows.

The authorities are inclined to believe she died as a result of some internal de-rangement caused by Randall's rough treatment. He will be held for further in-Food for the Tired Brain.

TILLMAN IS A STAYER

South Carolina's Senator Says Silver Will Win in 1900.

CAMPAIGN WAS TOO SHORT

crats Were Handicapped in the Fight from the Start.

REPUBLICANS HAD TOO MUCH MONEY

They Were Enabled To Control and Intimidate Voters, but with It All. Was a Great Campaign.

Columbia, S. C., November 6.-Senator Ben Tillman has returned to his home from Chicago. He is undismayed by the election of McKinley, and says that the bimetallic battle has just begun. He says that he feels greatly encouraged at the result, and adjures all bimetallists to stand firm in the faith. Today Senator Tillman gave out a statement to the press, in which he says:

"The battle has been the most heated and hardest fought political contest in our history, and the democratic party has never shown to better advantage. The issues have been clearly defined and bravely sustained, while our great leader, Bryan, has covered himself with glory, and is the idol of the democratic masses

The odium attaching to Clevelandism, and all that it implies, drove from us thousands of men. Hard times, the issue of bonds in time of peace, the so-called freetrade tariff bill, the loss of employment, all these were charged to the democratic party, and the democratic speakers and the few democratic newspapers which reached the masses in the northern cities were powerles to obliterate this impression. The democratic party suffered, although it had repudlated both Cleveland and his policy. The republicans had unlimited sums of money, and did not hesitate to use it to control thousands of votes. The rep ns had all the money they needed for use in their campaign, while the democrats relied upon volunteer speakers, and these could not cover the field so thoroughly as their opponents. Coercion and threats of closing down factories in the event of Bryan's election, deterred thousands from voting with us who otherwise would have been against trusts. In this campaign the natural alliance between the south and west has received an impetus which can-not be stopped. The issue of financial re-form and the restoration of the money of the constitution, is not dead, and will not

"We have broken the solid north, and the south is practically solid. The tyranny of the federal judiciary and the greed of the plutocrats will drive the masses to us by the million. Jefferson lost his first battle in 1796, but won in 1800. The republican party was overwhelmingly defeated in 1856. and Lincoln was defeated for the senate in We will win in 1900. McKinley cannot give relief or restore prosperity unless the law of supply and demand as it affects money has been repealed.

"The gold democrats have got in the party to which they belong," said the senator. "There can be no step backward. The southern people and the eastern democrats are separated by an impassable bar-rier. They are our taskmasters, and we know it. We have turned to the west, and must look and work in that direction. If the democrats had put up a gold platform. they could not have carried a single state. There may be a spasmodic rise, and temporary resumption of business activity, but the front four years hence, and the battle will be fought over again."

The question is "what kind of a Suit or Overcoat and how much for it?" Leave it to your "tailor" and he says "$20 to $50." Leave it to "us" and we say $10 to $30, and all the difference in the world will be in dollars. When you get a Suit or Overcoat here you know just how it is going to look and feel before you leave the store, and the garment we guarantee, and all this service at remarkably low and unapproachable price.

VALUE OF A LIFE VISITS HIM IN JAIL

Lewis Mitchell Estimates the Life of His Mrs. Taylor Delk Talks to Her Husband Son Was Worth $5,000.

CHILD WAS KILLED BY A CAR

Jury in the Walker-Liddell Litigation Fails To Agree and a Mis-trial Is Declared.

Lewis Mitchell, the father of Claude Mitchell, the four-year-old child that was killed last June by a street car, has filed suit in the city court against the Atlanta Railway Company for $5,000 damages.

Mitchell lived on McDaniel street and his children were accustomed to play about the house while their parents were at work. On the morning of June 28th Claude Mitchell and his little sister, Mary Mitchell, were playing in the street and attempted to cross the track in front of a trolley car that was running down the street.

The sister forgot her charge for a moment, and while she was looking in any company of the street of

The sister forgot her charge for a moment, and while she was looking in another direction the little boy was overtaken by the rapidly rolling car and was so badly injured and mangled that he died the next day.

Mitchell says he is a poor man and was not able to employ a nurse for his little son and was compelled to trust him in the care of his sister.

son and was compelled to trust him in the care of his sister.

In his petition, which was filed by Judge John T. Pendleton, Mitchell makes a number of charges against the employes of the car that killed his child. He says the motorman was looking back talking to a passenger that was aboard the car and that the motorman falled to look ahead, as was his duty. The father charges that the car was running at the rate of twenty miles an hour, which is in direct violation of the ordinances of the city. He also claims that the motorman was passing a street cross-ing and that the city does not permit a car to cross a street at a rate of speed greater than four miles an hour without ringing the gong and giving all the warning that

The father claims that his son was of great service to him in running errands, waiting upon his mother and in carrying wood into the house. He sues for the services of the child until he would have be-

The Jury Couldn't Agree. The litigation which has been pending two days in the first division of the city court between the heirs of the late James W. Walker and Captain James Liddell was concluded yesterday and the case went to the jury just after noon.

The jury was closeted in the juryroom for several hours, but late yesterday afternoon the foreman announced to Judge Reid that a verdict could not be agreed upon.

The jury was then called into the courtroom and Judge Reid that the courtroom and Judge Reid and the courtroom and room and Judge Reid asked if any member of the jury thought a verdict could be reached for him to stand up. Not a man moved from his chair. Judge Reid then declared a mistrial and dismissed the jury with the thanks of the court.

Spence Admitted to the Bar. Mr. George C. Spence, the son of Mr. N. C. Spence, was yesterday admitted to the practice of law in the superior court. Saturday Night Club Will Present an Attractive Programme.

The Saturday Night Club w.ll meet as usual tonight in the hall of the Young Men's Library Association on Marietta street. The subject for debate is, "Re-solved, That the reforms of the Gracchi were beneficial to the Roman republic." Both the affirmative and the negative of this question will be championed by the leading lights of the club and several of the club members have prepared pithy volun-tary debates. After the debate is over the club will be entertained by Mr. A. M. Cunningham, who will deliver a lecture on the "Old Time Darky." Mr. Cunningham has announced that this will be a humorous lecture and the club is anxiously awaiting Next Saturday night an unusually interesting programme will be given to the visitors. Among other things Dr. J. B. Robins will deliver an address. What his subject will be has not as yet been announced, but it is thought that he will answer the criticisms made upon his latest book.

Justice Foute. Mary Walker, a negro woman, was boun over to the city criminal court yesterday by Justice Foute on the charge of larceny from the house. Mary went into the house of J. R. Lamar, at 137. Decatur street, on last Thursday night and stole several things from it, among them being a watch, a suit of clothes and a hat. Her presence in the house was not noticed by the family at all and had it not been for the timely appearance of a policeman, who saw her coming out of the house, she would have coming out of the house, she would have escaped with her booty.

At the trial yesterday she made the defense that she was drunk at the time of the robbery and did not know what she was doing. She said that she was ordinarily a very good woman, but that she had tanked up to help celebrate the election of the republican nominee. Her bond was fixed at $100, which she failed to make.

ALSO CALLS ON THE SHERIFF

Wife of the Noted Outlaw Tells the Story of Her Home Life—Delivers a Message from Tom.

The wife of Taylor Delk and mother of Tom Delk was one of the visitors at the jail yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Delk called at the office of the sheriff early in the morning and asked for a permit to see her husband. She was thinly clad and wore a faded dress of old black slpaca. Her bonnet was made of the same material and her general appearance did not indicte that she was in good financial circumstances.

For quite a while she sat in the office of the sheriff and talked about her husband and her son. She told a pitiful story of domestic life and upon her face could be easily traced the lines and furrows of suffering and anxiety.

"Tom don't like being in the jail at Zebulon," she said, as she drew a long sigh and wiped a tear from her eye. "He ain't treated as well as he was when he was treated as well as he was which as with you, Mr. Barnes, and he ain't cared for like he oughter to be He wants to come back to Atlanta, where he can get something fit to eat, and where he can be with his father and where I can go to see "My youngest boy has been mighty sick 'My youngest boy has been highly for a long time, but he is better now and has gone to work in the cotton factory. He don't get but 20 cents a day, but then I don't reckon I ought to complain, for that is better than him being sick and me having to wait on him. He sweeps the floor in the factory and does turns for the others. "Both the girls have been working most of the time, but Annie ain't got anything to do now. The other girl is working in the candy factory and makes 40 and 45 cents a day. Sometimes she has to work from in the morning until nearly midnight. She ain't got any regular job, and just gets work by the piece.

"Taylor is well. He wrote me to go to see him yesterday, but I couldn't get down to the jail. I want to see him this morning to see if there is anything I can do for him. He says he is getting on first rate, but then he don't like being locked up in his cell.
"I ain't very well, for I have had to wait on the baby boy so much that I am about worked down. It looks like I have to suffer as much as the old man and Tom, for I have to take care of the balance of the family while they are in jail."

Mrs. Delk was given a permit to see her husband and she left the office for the jall, where she spent a long while talking to Taylor Delk through the prison bars. The attorneys of Tom Delk hope to secure a stay of the death sentence while his case goes to the supreme court of the United

Tom Delk has written to the jail authorities that he is closely watched by the Zebu-lon county jailer and has no liberties and is treated unkindly. NEGRO BURGLAR BOUND OVER.

Man Who Was Caught in Mr. Bowen's Residence Is Now in Jail.

Will Ethridge, a negro burglar, was bound over to the superior court by Justice Bloodworth yesterday. Ethridge was caught in the house of Mr. T. S. Bowen, at 119 Capitol avenue, Thursday night. Mr. Bowen thought that he heard a noise in the house and went to investigate, taking with him his double-barreled shotgun.

He found the negro in one of the rooms and ordered him to hold up his hands. Ethridge turned around and after looking down the barrels of the gun, decided that that was the proper court to pursue. Mr. Bowen then completed the capture and turned him over to the police, and the trial was set for yesterday. The negro's bond was placed at $500, which he failed to give.

LAKE STORM HAS DISAPPEARED.

Forecaster Marbury Reviews Weather

Conditions Over the Country.

The storm noted last night as central ever the lake region has disappeared to the northward, being attended by high winds on the eastern portion of Lake Eri during the day. A maximum velocity of sixty-four miles was reported from Buffalo, but at observation time it had fallen to a rate of 22 miles.

The barometric depression which was central in Kansas has almost disappeared from tonight's weather map, a portion of it moving northeastward to the upper lake region, with decreased energy, and another portion of it seems to cover the western portion of the gulf coast, causing some light showers on the Texas coast.

The fair weather condition covers the Atlantic coast states south of New York, the highest barometer readings being on the Georgia and Carolina coasts.

There has been a very rapid increase in the barometric pressure throughout the sections to the westward of the Mississippi and Missouri valleys, the barometer being above 30.40 inches in the western portions of South Dakota, with a temperature reading of 20 degrees. There is a moderate coolness approaching from the northwest, the temperature hav-ing fallen from 10 to 18 degrees in the states from Nebraska southward to central Texas, Oklahoma and central Missouri.

It is warmer 10 or more degrees along the west gulf const, in eastern Arkansas, Tennessee, Miss ssippl and in the western portions of Alabama and Georgia, thence northward to the upper lakes.

It is cooler about 10 degrees on the Atlantic coast, from Jacksonville to New York city. Fair weather prevails generally tonight, except at St. Paul and Omaha, where it is snowing. Some light snows also occurred in the Dakotas. Local Report for Yesterday. Highest temperature.
